Eisenhower Faces Hard Defense Job

A.P. Paris Chief Takes Trip With General, Learns Rigorous Work Lies Ahead

Reply Not Enough

Western Europe Evades Spending Money, Also Is Scared

By PRESTON GROVER

London, Jan. 24 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has completed his tour of Europe's Atlantic Pact nations with one sure finding—the job of building a defense will be brutally hard—but possible.

This correspondent has made the same tour, covered the same nations, and has talked to some of the people Gen. Eisenhower has seen and to some he has not.

Same Proposition

Eisenhower, pausing now in Paris before he flies tomorrow to Iceland, Canada and Washington, so far has presented to each country roughly the same proposition. He has told each one:

1. The risk of Russian aggression, either by diplomatic pressure or troops, is great. Russian aggression means the end of everything western civilization represents.

2. America is arming, expensively and fast.

3. America will help Europe arm. What is the maximum Europe can contribute?

The answer in each case—with the possible exception of Britain—has not been enough to satisfy the man who must make western defense work.

Opposes Spending

The hard fact is that most of western Europe doesn't want to spend money and most of it is scared.

The west Europeans don't want to spend money because, in each case, it means giving up a lot of bacon, cars and shoes they only lately have again after long years of privation during and after World War II.

They are scared because they know war may start before the United States, Britain and France—the countries which really can do something—are strong enough to act.

Officials of the little nations have indicated any rearmament they may get going now would only invite retaliation from Russia if the Reds decided to sweep over Europe soon.

Eisenhower has answered that each nation must do its utmost. If one nation hangs back, another will use that as an excuse to hang back. And here is the kicker—

If they all hang back, the U. S. Congress will not vote the money to send arms and troops to Europe.

That argument has a sting in it.

And what has Gen. Eisenhower's visit done to counteract the fear scare?

No Valuation of Tour

There is no hard answer. A fair estimate is that it has helped much. Long before Gen. Eisenhower was appointed, this correspondent talked to a number of European leaders about the war-scare business and their answer was mainly this:

"When the United States names a commander to direct rearmament and sends troops to Europe, then we will begin to have confidence."

That commander now has come. He is known to everybody. His buoyancy, his established success as a general and his big smile have had a noticeable effect.

It is this confidence he has tried to instill into officials—political and military—to whom he has talked. Undoubtedly he has

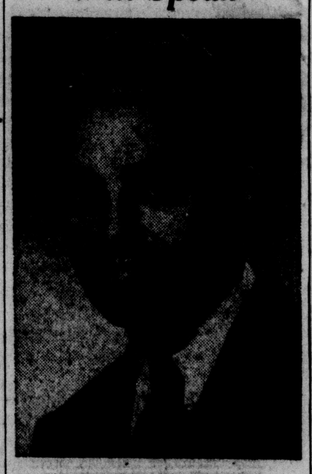
Allies Go Beyond Wonju; Yongwol Seized in South

Will Speak



GEORGE A. BOWIE

George A. Bowie, member of the public relations department of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, will be the principal speaker Thursday evening at the 1951 banquet of the Eastern Division meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Patrol Goes Within 33 Miles of Line; Reds' Losses Are Heavy

Tokyo, Jan. 24 (AP) — Allied troops slashed more than 10 miles beyond Wonju on the central Korean front today and to the southeast recaptured the key mountain town of Yongwol.

A heavily-armed patrol with tanks blazed through Hoengsong, 10 miles north of Wonju, and pushed on to within 33 miles of the 38th Parallel before withdrawing, a field dispatch said.

It was the farthest northward advance by any allied force since Seoul, the Korean capital, was abandoned. On the way back the task force was engaged by a company of enemy troops. The Reds retreated with heavy casualties.

The Han river town of Yongwol southeast of Wonju fell to allied attack after an air and artillery bombardment.

The capturing force was not identified. However, the U. S. Seventh Division, only American force to reach the Manchurian border in the Korean war, has been operating south of the Tungsten mining town.

Planes, Artillery Help

A.P. Correspondent Tom Stone said the attacking force drove across the ice-covered Han river after an intense air and artillery barrage.

The surprised Reds fled, leaving only light opposition.

In the air, swift U. S. F-84 Thunderjets damaged three Russian-built MIG-15s in northwest Korea. First reports had claimed one enemy jet shot down but the Fifth Air Force later revised its toll.

Between 16 and 20 MIGs flashed across the Yalu river and attacked the American Thunderjets. The American planes fought clear without damage, as they did Tuesday when the swift Thunderjets shot down three and possibly four MIGs and damaged three others.

Capt. Allan J. Gilbert was credited with damaging one MIG Wednesday and Capt. Richard T. Rutherford was credited with damaging two. Both are from Austin, Tex. Neither claimed to have inflicted any damage in Tuesday's battle.

Rifle Women Seen

On the ground, a band of 500 rifle women showed seven miles south of Yongwol with a Red Korean force of 1,500 troops.

A tank lead patrol pushed within one mile of Hoengsong, 10 miles north of Wonju on the central front.

On the western front, the Eighth Army communique reported that enemy troops had been seen entering the town of Ichon, 30 air miles southeast of Seoul.

The communique said there was no contact in this sector. Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said patrols were sweeping the eastern and central front in an effort to keep contact with the enemy, now showing a reluctance to fight.

Approval Is Foreseen

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP) — The administration can count on the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees to approve a resolution indorsing the dispatch of American troops to Europe. A spot check by the Associated Press of 21 of the 26 members of the two committees showed that as of today 14 favor such a move and not one publicly opposes it. A favorable recommendation by the two committees would carry heavy weight with the Senate.

Rescue Work Goes On

Vienna, Jan. 24 (AP) — Aviators dipping perilously into misty valleys and thousands of men on skis and afoot carried out rescue missions in avalanche-stricken Alpine Europe today. In Austria, Switzerland and Italy it was established that 168 persons have been killed by masses of snow and boulders sliding down mountain sides. The figure will certainly be higher, said officials directing rescue efforts, as reports come in from hundreds of tiny communities isolated by the worst avalanches of the century.

Korea Winter Aids Allies by Holding Communists Back

Bitter Weather Is Causing More and More Deaths Among Reds, Is Declaration

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The man-killing Korean winter may be the strong ally which holds the Communist enemy there in check until Gen. Douglas MacArthur's divisions can be built up to normal strength next spring.

A high army officer, asked today why the military here and in Korea appeared to be taking a more optimistic view of the war replied:

"Winter is fighting for us."

He said battlefield checks show an increasing mortality among enemy troops from the bitter weather of Korea, a rate great enough to have significant military importance.

Could U.N. forces launch a winter offensive?

May Last Two Months

Why try it? replied the officer, who may not be identified by name. There will be another six weeks or two months of bitter cold. It will kill and incapacitate more and more enemy troops. Why not just sit tight and let winter do our fighting? he asked.

Secretary of Defense Marshall, in testifying yesterday before the House Armed Services Committee on universal service training legislation, said General MacArthur will need 15,000 replacements a month and it will be April before his divisions can be built up to what Marshall called "normal strength." (The normal strength of an American Army infantry division is about 18,000 men.)

Taken alone, Marshall's statement would raise serious questions about the ability of U.N. forces to hold off the hundreds of thousands of Chinese and North Korean soldiers arrayed against them.

Might Give Balance

However, the reports of high casualty rates among the enemy because of the weather suggested that this might provide the necessary balance and time needed until the U.N. forces can be replenished.

The Pentagon officer estimated that the ration of frostbite casualties to the Chinese and Korean Red soldiers as against

Nickel Use Banned In Automobile Trim

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The government today banned the use of nickel in automobile trim and in nearly 400 other civilian products.

The purpose is to conserve the short nickel supply for defense and essential civilian uses.

One of the most important defense uses of nickel is to make jet airplane engines resistant to great heat and corrosion.

The National Production Authority (NPA) made public a long list of products for civilians in which nickel silver or nickel plate may not be used in new manufacturing on March 1 and thereafter.

Leader Says Distance Is Big Barrier

Broadcast Talk Blasts U. S. Desire to Brand China as Aggressor in Korea

May 'Close Doors'

U. S. Attitude, He Feels, Might End Civilized Approach

New Delhi, India, Jan. 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru of India, in a broadcast bristling with criticism of the United States' policy in Asia, called tonight for a conference of major powers to discuss world problems, "instead of talking at each other across thousands of miles."

"It is clear that enough has been said on both sides for negotiation in a conference to be the next fruitful step," Nehru said.

The Indian leader contended the American proposal to name Communist China an aggressor in Korea—a policy backed by both Houses of the U. S. Congress—"cannot lead to peace," he said.

'Can't Lead to Peace'

"It can only lead to intensification of conflicts and might perhaps close the door to any attempt at solution by negotiation. It is a tremendous responsibility for any person to take such a step. At no time should this door be closed, for if we close it, we also close the door to a civilized approach to any problem."

Nehru's broadcast marked his return from the London meeting of prime ministers of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Great Britain also is opposing any plans to impose U.N. penalties against the Red Chinese as aggressors.

Place for China Urged

In reference to American opposition to the seating of Red China in the United Nations, Nehru said:

"For the past year or more we persistently urged new China should be given a place in the councils of the world at Lake Success. Yet this has not been done and most people realize now that the fate of the world might well have been different if that obvious fact had been recognized.

"There has been a reluctance and hesitation to accept the great change that has come over Asia. There still is an attempt sometimes to treat the great nations of Asia in the old way."

Changes in Asia have upset the balance of power, Nehru said, adding:

"Because the United Nations did not recognize it, the difficulties arose and continue to trouble us."

38th Crossing Cited

"Again there was the question of crossing the 38th parallel in Korea.

"Adequate notice and warning was given, but it was not heeded, and further complications ensued.

"Can we not say now, wiser after the event, that this is a major error which should have been avoided?"

At no point in his address did Nehru refer to the United States by name.

Supporting what he called Communist China's desire for a peaceful settlement, Nehru said:

"The information I received from our ambassador in Peiping convinced me that the people's government of China are eager to have negotiations for a settlement of Korean and other problems of the Far East. Their reply to the resolutions of the political committee of the United Nations embodying certain principles was considered by some people as a rejection of those principles. After the closest scrutiny I was totally unable to understand this criticism.

'Partial Acceptance'

"That reply was a partial acceptance of those principles and certain further suggestions were made which were obviously meant to be discussed.

"Subsequent to this, further clarification has come from the Chinese government, and this has made it even more clear that they are desirous of negotiations for peace in the Far East."

Nehru appealed to "the great nations of the west . . . to cross this threshold of opportunity in

Newburgh Tax Fight Shows Kingston Costs Much Lower

Johnston Is Given Recommendations

DiSalle Says Report Is to Be Made in Short Time on Matter

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Price Stabilizer Michael DiSalle said today he has given Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston recommendations for a general price freeze.

He made the statement before the joint Senate-House economic committee.

DiSalle did not make public details of his recommendations but said that an announcement probably will be made within a couple of days.

His testimony followed word from other officials that a price roll-back may be expected tomorrow, possibly to be followed by a wage freeze on Friday.

An overall price ceiling at levels of Jan. 2 was reported by informed government sources to be in the works.

The wage action, it was understood, will put a lid on wages as of the day announced.

Broadcast Planned

Johnston, long time president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and lately the president of the Motion Picture Association, is understood to be planning a radio and television broadcast tomorrow evening, at which time he will tell the public of his plans.

He took the oath of office from Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson in a brief ceremony in President Truman's news conference room in the old State Department building.

An order was due shortly from Johnston giving autonomous power over prices to Price Stabilization Director Michael V. DiSalle and over wages to the nine-member Wage Stabilization Board headed by Cyrus S. Ching.

Authority Was Limited

Under Johnston's predecessor, Alan Valentine, who resigned Friday, DiSalle enjoyed only limited authority and the wage board had

Comparison Hits Such Items as Garbage, Recreation and Street Care

Newburgh's fight against a sales tax brought out earlier this week that Kingston is operating some departments for less than half as much as the Orange county city.

Figures presented to the Newburgh City Council by Councilman Frank F. Mahler, who was elected last November on his promise to fight for repeal of the tax, showed that Kingston spends less than a quarter of the Newburgh total for recreation.

Newburgh, said Mahler, spends $79,908 a year compared with $17,700 in Kingston and $33,185 in Poughkeepsie.

Garbage Collections

Garbage collection, he said, cost Newburgh $96,819, and Kingston $62,832. Costs cited for other cities were, Rome, $64,800 and Watertown, $18,850. The cost of Kingston's incinerator operation is $14,175 as against $30,634 for Newburgh, he said.

Mahler contended that efforts to keep costs of department operations in line with those of other cities and utilizing other sources of income would give Newburgh $450,303 of its budget deficit of $452,000.

Street Care Less

Kingston, said Mahler, with 120 miles of streets spends $16,272 for street cleaning while Newburgh with 53 miles of streets spends $33,696 and Jamestown with 130 miles of streets spends only $23,075 a year.

Kingston, with 90 acres of parks, he said, spends $32,045 a year for that purpose while Newburgh with 70 acres spends

Knouse Declares Subsidies Threaten Economic Disaster

Horticulturists Open Their Sessions at Armory; Paper Read to Attendance

Farmers must learn how to market their produce in order to build a sound agricultural economy and avoid the disaster which could result from continued government subsidy, members of the New York State Horticultural Society were told in this morning's opening session of the society's three-day annual eastern meeting at the armory.

The talk, prepared by M. E. Knouse, president of Knouse Co-Op of Peach Glen, Pa., the largest existing apple processing organization of the country, was read to the society by D. M. Dalrymple, secretary-treasurer. Knouse was unable to attend the meeting because of illness.

"If the problems of marketing farm products are not soundly solved, it may very well wreck our whole economy," Knouse stated.

Result to Be Same

"On the other hand, if growers turn to government for assistance, and if we simply add the farmer's loss to the national debt, it may take a little longer, but the end result will be the same," he theorized.

In his prepared talk, Knouse said he knew of no instance outside of agriculture where persons embark on a production effort "without at the same time building a marketing organization right along with the production effort. Production people in all other fields have correlated production and marketing in order to build a sound business."

In 40 years experience, Knouse said he observed that the only really prosperous years for apple growers have been the years when the nation was engaged in war and the years of short crops. He noted that in years of good apple crops, there is always a shortage of pickers with the result that part of the crop must be dumped on the market at low prices in order to avoid loss due to allowing the apples to become over-ripe.

Can't Blame Middlemen

Knouse warned against placing all the blame on the so-called middlemen. "They perhaps are doing as good a job as they can be expected to do under the circumstances. They know that the farmer does not protect his market . . . and they have to work on very close margins and have to play the game just as safely as they know how to play it," he stated.

Women's Program Planned at Church

Events Part of Horticulture Sessions; Pie Contest Is Scheduled

Thursday's program of the New York State Horticultural Society meeting in this city includes the annual banquet at the Governor Clinton Hotel, a program for women at the First Baptist Church and discussions for apple growers on various problems.

The growers meet at the armory at 10 a. m. to hear reports on a efficiency study, research in concentrate spraying and a discussion of the supply situation. The afternoon will be devoted to a business session and a discussion of research in new spray materials.

Starts 1:30 P. M.

The women's program starts at 1:30 p. m. and includes a pie baking contest, talks on fashions by Mrs. Roger Loughran and by Mrs. Grace L. Hudowalski, travel promotion supervisor of the Department of Commerce.

The banquet is scheduled for Thursday evening, featuring a talk by George A. Bowie of the public relations department of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company. "Gosch the Magician" of Schenectady will provide the entertainment.

Exhibits of farm and related equipment in the armory are open to the public, without admission charge, during the day.

Union Notifies Picketing Likely

Sam Getlan, business manager of Local 105, United Coin Operated Machine Employes Union, whose address is 10 Park avenue, Mt. Vernon, notified local police yesterday, that certain local business places may be picketed.

Getlan said the union is organizing in the city, and indicated that three distributors and owners "are not in line" and that pickets may be placed in front of business establishments where coin machines have been placed.

Restaurant and tavern owners in the city and county were notified weeks ago that an effort was in progress in the Hudson valley and Catskill mountain area to organize workmen in the juke box field and some larger distributors have conformed.

Getlan said he "expects no trouble" here, the report yesterday said. Local police said they had received no notice today that picketing had started in the city.

Two-Day Conference Ready, Noted Speakers Are Listed

Approxamately 100 supervisors and teachers from neighboring communities throughout the county will join with the 230 members of the Kingston Public Schools to make the second annual mid-year conference one of the largest and most significant educational gatherings to be held in this section of New York State in many years.

The conference which is scheduled for Thursday and Friday of this week will feature experts in the field of conservation and education. Speakers are attending from such colleges as Yale, Columbia, New York University, Albany State Teachers College and New Paltz State Teachers College. There will also be representatives from the State Department of Education, the State Department of Conservation, Rhode Island and several leading secondary schools in the metropolitan area.

The program planned for the two-day conference is as follows:

Thursday A. M.

Kingston High School

9:00—Meeting of all school faculties in high school auditorium, Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw, presiding.

9:15—Address: "Deserts on the March", Dr. Paul Sears, Yale University; introduction by Dr. Richard H D. Boerker, Kingston High School.

10:15—Discussion groups of 25 will meet in classrooms to formulate questions to be asked by Dr. Sears; John Henry Martin, Principal, Kingston High School, presiding.

Corning Is Asked to Assist On State Manpower Angle

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—The Dewey administration sought help today from a leader of the O'Connell Democratic organization on how to soften manpower draft provisions in the governor's war-regimentation program.

But, Albany Mayor Erastus Corning douhts if he can help much. He's flatly opposed to giving Dewey any authority now to conscript manpower for part-time civil defense assignments.

Corning says the conscription provisions should be eliminated from the administration's bill.

He favors an intensive drive for volunteer workers. If that fails, he says, then the legislature should be called into special session to authorize a draft.

Corning voiced strong opposition to the conscription proposals yesterday at a closed meeting of municipal officials with Lt. Gov. Frank C. Moore, the administration's trouble-shooter on the controversial defense emergency bill.

Moore asked Corning and a few other local representatives to work with Dewey's counsel, Lawrence E. Walsh, on a modified conscription provision.

The lieutenant governor later mentioned an "automatic" provision, under which the conscription powers would be authorized but withheld from use until such time as a volunteer system failed to produce enough personnel. He spoke of standby draft powers without additional legislative action.

Corning accepted the invitation to try to work out standby conscription powers for Dewey and a state defense council.

But he said later he was "du-

Leader Says Distance Is Big Barrier

Broadcast Talk Blasts U. S. Desire to Brand China as Aggressor in Korea

May 'Close Doors'

U. S. Attitude, He Feels, Might End Civilized Approach

New Delhi, India, Jan. 24 (AP) —Prime Minister Nehru of India, in a broadcast bristling with criticism of the United States' policy in Asia, called tonight for a conference of major powers to discuss world problems, "instead of talking at each other across thousands of miles."

Nehru's broadcast marked his return from the London meeting of prime ministers of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Great Britain also is opposing any plans to impose U.N. penalties against the Red Chinese as aggressors.

Newburgh Tax Fight Shows Kingston Costs Much Lower

Johnston Is Given Recommendations

DiSalle Says Report Is to Be Made in Short Time on Matter

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Price Stabilizer Michael DiSalle said today he has given Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston recommendations for a general price freeze.

He made the statement before the joint Senate-House economic committee.

DiSalle did not make public details of his recommendations but said that an announcement probably will be made within a couple of days.

His testimony followed word from other officials that a price roll-back may be expected tomorrow, possibly to be followed by a wage freeze on Friday.

An overall price ceiling at levels of Jan. 2 was reported by informed government sources to be in the works.

The wage action, it was understood, will put a lid on wages as of the day announced.

Broadcast Planned

Johnston, long time president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and lately the president of the Motion Picture Association, is understood to be planning a radio and television broadcast tomorrow evening, at which time he will tell the public of his plans.

He took the oath of office from Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson in a brief ceremony in President Truman's news conference room in the old State Department building.

An order was due shortly from Johnston giving autonomous power over prices to Price Stabilization Director Michael V. DiSalle and over wages to the nine-member Wage Stabilization Board headed by Cyrus S. Ching.

Authority Was Limited

Under Johnston's predecessor, Alan Valentine, who resigned Friday, DiSalle enjoyed only limited authority and the wage board had

Comparison Hits Such Items as Garbage, Recreation and Street Care

Newburgh's fight against a sales tax brought out earlier this week that Kingston is operating some departments for less than half as much as the Orange county city.

Figures presented to the Newburgh City Council by Councilman Frank F. Mahler, who was elected last November on his promise to fight for repeal of the tax, showed that Kingston spends less than a quarter of the Newburgh total for recreation.

Newburgh, said Mahler, spends $79,908 a year compared with $17,700 in Kingston and $33,185 in Poughkeepsie.

Garbage Collections

Garbage collection, he said, cost Newburgh $96,819, and Kingston $62,832. Costs cited for other cities were, Rome, $64,800 and Watertown, $18,850. The cost of Kingston's incinerator operation is $14,175 as against $30,634 for Newburgh, he said.

Mahler contended that efforts to keep costs of department operations in line with those of other cities and utilizing other sources of income would give Newburgh $450,303 of its budget deficit of $452,000.

Street Care Less

Kingston, said Mahler, with 120 miles of streets spends $16,272 for street cleaning while Newburgh with 53 miles of streets spends $33,696 and Jamestown with 130 miles of streets spends only $23,075 a year.

Kingston, with 90 acres of parks, he said, spends $32,045 a year for that purpose while Newburgh with 70 acres spends

Knouse Declares Subsidies Threaten Economic Disaster

Horticulturists Open Their Sessions at Armory; Paper Read to Attendance

Farmers must learn how to market their produce in order to build a sound agricultural economy and avoid the disaster which could result from continued government subsidy, members of the New York State Horticultural Society were told in this morning's opening session of the society's three-day annual eastern meeting at the armory.

The talk, prepared by M. E. Knouse, president of Knouse Co-Op of Peach Glen, Pa., the largest existing apple processing organization of the country, was read to the society by D. M. Dalrymple, secretary-treasurer. Knouse was unable to attend the meeting because of illness.

"If the problems of marketing farm products are not soundly solved, it may very well wreck our whole economy," Knouse stated.

Result to Be Same

"On the other hand, if growers turn to government for assistance, and if we simply add the farmer's loss to the national debt, it may take a little longer, but the end result will be the same," he theorized.

In his prepared talk, Knouse said he knew of no instance outside of agriculture where persons embark on a production effort "without at the same time building a marketing organization right along with the production effort. Production people in all other fields have correlated production and marketing in order to build a sound business."

In 40 years experience, Knouse said he observed that the only really prosperous years for apple growers have been the years when the nation was engaged in war and the years of short crops. He noted that in years of good apple crops, there is always a shortage of pickers with the result that part of the crop must be dumped on the market at low prices in order to avoid loss due to allowing the apples to become over-ripe.

Can't Blame Middlemen

Knouse warned against placing all the blame on the so-called middlemen. "They perhaps are doing as good a job as they can be expected to do under the circumstances. They know that the farmer does not protect his market . . . and they have to work on very close margins and have to play the game just as safely as they know how to play it," he stated.

Korea Winter Aids Allies by Holding Communists Back

Bitter Weather Is Causing More and More Deaths Among Reds, Is Declaration

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The man-killing Korean winter may be the strong ally which holds the Communist enemy there in check until Gen. Douglas MacArthur's divisions can be built up to normal strength next spring.

A high army officer, asked today why the military here and in Korea appeared to be taking a more optimistic view of the war replied:

"Winter is fighting for us."

He said battlefield checks show an increasing mortality among enemy troops from the bitter weather of Korea, a rate great enough to have significant military importance.

Could U.N. forces launch a winter offensive?

May Last Two Months

Why try it? replied the officer, who may not be identified by name. There will be another six weeks or two months of bitter cold. It will kill and incapacitate more and more enemy troops. Why not just sit tight and let winter do our fighting? he asked.

Secretary of Defense Marshall, in testifying yesterday before the House Armed Services Committee on universal service training legislation, said General MacArthur will need 15,000 replacements a month and it will be April before his divisions can be built up to what Marshall called "normal strength." (The normal strength of an American Army infantry division is about 18,000 men.)

Taken alone, Marshall's statement would raise serious questions about the ability of U.N. forces to hold off the hundreds of thousands of Chinese and North Korean soldiers arrayed against them.

Might Give Balance

However, the reports of high casualty rates among the enemy because of the weather suggested that this might provide the necessary balance and time needed until the U.N. forces can be replenished.

The Pentagon officer estimated that the ration of frostbite casualties to the Chinese and Korean Red soldiers as against

Nickel Use Banned In Automobile Trim

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The government today banned the use of nickel in automobile trim and in nearly 400 other civilian products.

The purpose is to conserve the short nickel supply for defense and essential civilian uses.

One of the most important defense uses of nickel is to make jet airplane engines resistant to great heat and corrosion.

The National Production Authority (NPA) made public a long list of products for civilians in which nickel silver or nickel plate may not be used in new manufacturing on March 1 and thereafter.

Women's Program Planned at Church

Events Part of Horticulture Sessions; Pie Contest Is Scheduled

Thursday's program of the New York State Horticultural Society meeting in this city includes the annual banquet at the Governor Clinton Hotel, a program for women at the First Baptist Church and discussions for apple growers on various problems.

The growers meet at the armory at 10 a. m. to hear reports on a efficiency study, research in concentrate spraying and a discussion of the supply situation. The afternoon will be devoted to a business session and a discussion of research in new spray materials.

Starts 1:30 P. M.

The women's program starts at 1:30 p. m. and includes a pie baking contest, talks on fashions by Mrs. Roger Loughran and by Mrs. Grace L. Hudowalski, travel promotion supervisor of the Department of Commerce.

The banquet is scheduled for Thursday evening, featuring a talk by George A. Bowie of the public relations department of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company. "Gosch the Magician" of Schenectady will provide the entertainment.

Exhibits of farm and related equipment in the armory are open to the public, without admission charge, during the day.

Union Notifies Picketing Likely

Sam Getlan, business manager of Local 105, United Coin Operated Machine Employes Union, whose address is 10 Park avenue, Mt. Vernon, notified local police yesterday, that certain local business places may be picketed.

Getlan said the union is organizing in the city, and indicated that three distributors and owners "are not in line" and that pickets may be placed in front of business establishments where coin machines have been placed.

Restaurant and tavern owners in the city and county were notified weeks ago that an effort was in progress in the Hudson valley and Catskill mountain area to organize workmen in the juke box field and some larger distributors have conformed.

Getlan said he "expects no trouble" here, the report yesterday said. Local police said they had received no notice today that picketing had started in the city.

The conference which is scheduled for Thursday and Friday of this week will feature experts in the field of conservation and education. Speakers are attending from such colleges as Yale, Columbia, New York University, Albany State Teachers College and New Paltz State Teachers College. There will also be representatives from the State Department of Education, the State Department of Conservation, Rhode Island and several leading secondary schools in the metropolitan area.

The program planned for the two-day conference is as follows:

Corning Is Asked to Assist On State Manpower Angle

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—The Dewey administration sought help today from a leader of the O'Connell Democratic organization on how to soften manpower draft provisions in the governor's war-regimentation program.

But, Albany Mayor Erastus Corning douhts if he can help much. He's flatly opposed to giving Dewey any authority now to conscript manpower for part-time civil defense assignments.

Corning says the conscription provisions should be eliminated from the administration's bill.

He favors an intensive drive for volunteer workers. If that fails, he says, then the legislature should be called into special session to authorize a draft.

Corning voiced strong opposition to the conscription proposals yesterday at a closed meeting of municipal officials with Lt. Gov. Frank C. Moore, the administration's trouble-shooter on the controversial defense emergency bill.

Moore asked Corning and a few other local representatives to work with Dewey's counsel, Lawrence E. Walsh, on a modified conscription provision.

The lieutenant governor later mentioned an "automatic" provision, under which the conscription powers would be authorized but withheld from use until such time as a volunteer system failed to produce enough personnel. He spoke of standby draft powers without additional legislative action.

Corning accepted the invitation to try to work out standby conscription powers for Dewey and a state defense council.

But he said later he was "du-

Cancer Clinic for Dogs

New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 24 (AP)—A cancer clinic for dogs only was announced today by Rutgers University. The clinic is something unique both in dog medicine and in cancer research. Its sole aim is to treat and study cancer in dogs, which get cancer about as often as human beings do. The dog studies may turn up knowledge helpful against human cancer. This new deal for dogs is already underway at the Bureau of Biological Research at Rutgers. All New Jersey veteranarians are being asked to send dog cancer patients here, Dr. Robert C. Clothier, president of the State University, announced. But dogs will be accepted from other states, too, as facilities permit, said Dr. James B. Allison, bureau director, and Dr. John R. McCoy, veterinarian supervising the clinic. Dogs will be treated free. The U. S. Public Health Service granted $15,000 for the first year of the new project. Dogs will be diagnosed, treated and studied much as human patients are, Dr. Allison said.

Bill Goes to Senate

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The House passed and sent to the Senate late yesterday a bill designed to permit the government to recapture any unduly large profits on many defense contracts. House action was by a 377 to 0 roll call vote. The bill, modelled after World War 2 legislation, provides for renegotiation of contracts on which the contractor in any year received or earned $100,000 or more. Prime responsibility for renegotiation would be lodged with a board of five members named by the President, subject to Senate confirmation.

The receipts at this last stated reception in the First Olive district was about the usual amount and is considered very good in view of the fact that most of the large colony of summer residents invariably settle their levy by mail, and also that several previous sittings have been held this month in other Olive communities. The town, with a total taxable real property full valuation of $9,743,468, ranks third among the 20 similar county units in this respect, the other two being Warwarsing and Saugerties.

Here's Why They Bite

State College, Pa., Jan. 24 (AP)—Ever wonder why mosquitoes put the bite on you and spare others? Two Pennsylvania State College Scientists have an answer—you've got the right taste appeal. Drs. Hubert W. Frings and Charles L. Hamrum,. reporting on a study of habits and fancies of mosquitoes, say that the female—the male doesn't go after blood—tests your taste appeal before sinking the stinger. This is done, they explain, through sensitive samplers on her nose and legs. If the mosquito bites, say the researchers, it means she has found the blood type which suits a really keen and subtle sense of taste.

Dental Study Club Favors Further Tests of Fluorine

The Ulster-Greene Dental Study Club favors fluorination of city water supplies at such time as the New York State Department of Health recommends it.

In a resolution adopted by the club at its regular meeting at the Hotel Stuyvesant on January 17, the members stated they recognize the beneficial dental effects of the fluorination process, but agree that further time is necessary to complete the Newburgh-Kingston caries fluorine study.

The resolution reads, in part, "Resolved, that we, as a society, recognizing the beneficial results to be derived from the fluorination of communal water supplies, will be in full accord with such a procedure whenever the New York State Health Department decides to recommend it, and

"Be it further resolved, that we affirm the resolution passed by the Third District Dental Society in Albany on Wednesday, January 17, in favor of setting up a fluorination program for all community water supplies in the district."

The Dental Study Club's resolution also stated its agreement with the recommendation of the advisory committee (composed of specialists in the medical and dental professions) to the state health department.

Held Off for Year

This advisory committee, at a meeting attended by Dr. Robert H. Broad, county health commissioner, requested that the city of Kingston refrain from its application for one more year to allow completion of studies in both the dental and medical fields, according to a report of the meeting contained within the county health department's quarterly report covering October, November and December, 1950.

The quarterly report notes that the dental and medical societies of this county "each separately and unaware of the attitude of the other resolved that inasmuch as the study has not been completed to the extent that the evidence is completely conclusive . . . the request of the committee be honored."

The report recommends further time to study completely "any adverse physical effects." It is anticipated, the health department's report continued, that the New York State Department of Health "will shortly recommend the fluorination of municipal water supplies, provided proper laboratory controls are instituted.

Big Mail Reported

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—If the letters mailed today by the General Electric Company were piled on top of each other they would make a paper pillar higher than the Empire State Building. The total of $17,100,000 represented a payment of 60 cents a share to 249,073 stockholders of record Dec. 15.

Rapid Volunteers Dine at Church of Chaplain Gollnick

More than 100 members and their wives and guests attended the annual banquet, Tuesday, of Rapid Hose Company held in Trinity Lutheran Church, where the Ladies Aid served a delicious menu prior to the speaking program.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy praised Rapids for their cooperation with his department and mentioned the long record of service the company has given to the community.

Other speakers introduced by President Claude Heron were Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk; the Rev. Frank L. Gollnick and Deputy Fire Chief Harold Sanford. Fire commissioners present were Henry Kelsch, Charles Derrenbacher and Frank Burr.

Among the invited guests were Captain William Geary of the paid fire department, John J. Schwenk, former alderman-at-large; Joseph Kelly, alderman-at-large; Peter Kereseman, secretary of the New York State Police Conference, and three of the oldest members of the company were introduced John Zeeh, John Herman and Frank Myers.

Prior to the meal, Chaplain Gollnick offered a prayer for the late Augustus Bunce, one of the outstanding members of the company over a long period of years.

Dinner music was by the Catskill Mountaineers, who played for dancing in the engine house later in the evening.

Adams Center, N. Y., had 334 inches of snow in one year.

Price Is Forecast

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—A uniform price of $4.86 a hundredweight (about 47 quarts) is forecast for January milk deliveries made by dairy farmers in the six-state New York milkshed. The estimated producer butterfat differential for January is 5.8 cents for each tenth of a pound of fat above or below the 3.5 per cent standard. The forecasts were released last night by C. J. Blanford, market administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area. In December the uniform price was $4.91 and in January a year ago it was $3.91.

MANKIND'S GREATEST DREAM

Lasting peace is mankind's greatest dream. In war and out, the goal is never lost sight of. Noble experiments, like the League of Nations and the United Nations, are begun in its name.

When war threatens, the magic of the word "peace" is invoked with especial fervor on many sides. Understandably—since only the most diabolic of men consciously plunge the globe into the holocaust of war.

But in the tense days on the approaches to the abyss, certain categories of men come to feel that somehow they are the particular guardians of peace. They come to believe that they revere it and desire it more than most others.

In the struggle against Russian communism, Prime Minister Nehru of India sees himself in such a role. He talks and acts as if responsible men in other free nations do not want peace and are actually committed to war.

He declares in effect that the task of the honorable peacelover is to stand aloof from the "sordid" conflict between East and West, to keep from becoming entangled in it. He sees the true seeker after peace as a mediator, a compromiser of this struggle.

No one would wish for an instant to detract from Nehru's idealism, or from the high principles which motivate any sincere advocate of peace. But it is apparent that he, and many of his kind, do not appreciate the essence of meaningful peace.

Peace is not simply the absence of shooting. Nor is it non-violence purchased at the price of surrender of the world's finest ideals of freedom and fulfillment. You do not mediate or compromise with murder. Nor do you bend your knee abjectly before naked, brutal aggression.

Peace that yields all power to evil forces is not the goal mankind seeks. War is a fabric of unspeakable horrors, but it is better than a peace which crowns evil as the victor.

The kind of peace that men all around the globe yearn for can have no taint of subservience to evil. Real peace has very special qualities.

It is based, first of all, upon international justice. That's a mouthful our statesmen often utter but don't bother to explain. What it means is that peace, to have lasting worth, must provide a fair prospect of self-fulfillment for all nations and all peoples. Oppression or slavery or degradation in any corner of the earth menace the structure of peace.

Peace is founded, too, on sound principles of international morality. It is not the product of immoral trading with an evil enemy. It is not the product of political deals with totalitarian force. Such deals are not steps to peace, Mr. Nehru. They are non-military victories for the enemy of peace.

A real peace is not static. It is not a vacuum. It is a positive thing. It must be waged with the same vigor as war. Its fundamental qualities must be guarded jealously if and when they are achieved.

Indeed, there are times when free man must be willing to fight for that kind of peace, contradition though this may seem.

For it is not the mere quiet of a gun-stilled world that we strive. It is for a condition among men that will make the firing of guns a course of action never to be considered.

Americans did a lot of inhaling last year—and a great part of it went into consuming more than 361,000,000,000 cigarettes.

IKE'S BIG JOB

General Dwight D. Eisenhower's European mission has many angles besides the simple military one. Observers in Europe claim that the question of morale is even greater.

European government circles are said to be confused by our current debate on foreign policy. They realize that although the Republicans are not now in power they may very well be before the present rearmament program is completed. This fact gives rise to fear that American support may not fill the role which has been assigned to it in Europe.

Few generals in history have been given a task which demanded so much in diplomacy, common sense and political knowledge as does that of General Eisenhower.

The pitter-patter of raindrops is sleep-impelling music—as long as the roof doesn't leak.

THE RED-BAITERS

I saw an advertisement in which a magazine pats itself on the back for its anti-Communist record since 1949. It is pleasing to know that the times have so changed that many who once loved Stalin now wish to be known as Stalin-haters. Others who went along with the Communists now insist that we forget their past performances on the ground that they have now changed their minds. They do not, however, express any regrets for their former conduct. That is all to the good, but does arouse the query as to why it took them from 1917 to 1949 to discover the truth.

Pondering a bit on this subject, I tried to compile spontaneously and from memory a list of active fighters against communism before 1940. Perhaps it means nothing to anybody nor can such a list be complete. But what interested me was to discover how many Americans I could remember who were willing to risk being known as Red-Baiters, among whom I include myself since 1917, whose work attracted attention.

After I had compiled my list, I submitted it to two of the most balanced authorities on the subject, Dr. J. B. Matthews and Benjamin Stolberg, for their consideration and this is the result, which I think will stand any test. To be on the list, the following qualifications were stipulated:

1. The person must be an avowed anti-Stalinist;
2. He must have devoted his talents to battling communism and influence of Soviet Russia in the United States;
3. He must not have sought a compromise with Stalinism in any form;
4. He must not have been influenced by temporary situations such as the Stalin-Hitler alliance.

This is my list:

Harry A. Jung, Joseph P. Kamp, Father James Keller, Margaret Kerr, H. R. Knickerbocker, Alfred Kohlberg, Joseph Kornfeder (Zack), Irene Kuhn, Suzanne LaFollette, Isaac Don Levine, Fulton Lewis, Jr., Charles A. Lindbergh, Clayton R. Lusk, Eugene Lyons, Benjamin Mandel, J. B. Matthews, Robert R. McCormick, James McGuinness, Adolphe Menjou, Robert Montgomery, Robert Morris, John F. Neylan, Fred Niblo, Jr., Fred Niendorff.

Norman Vincent Peale, Westbrook Pegler, Roscoe Pound, Burton Rascoe, Victor Riesel, Howard Emmet Rogers, Lela Rogers, James Rorty, Howard Rushmore, Morrie Ryskind, Glenn Saxon, Frederick J. Schlink, George Schuyler, James P. Selvage, George E. Sokolsky, Jacob Spolansky, Joe Starnes, Walter S. Steele, Archibald E. Stevenson, Benjamin Stolberg, Wesley Stout, Robert E. Stripling, Jack B. Tenney, J. Parnell Thomas, Norman Thomas, Elon F. Tompkins, John B. Trevor, Walter Trohan, Louis Waldman, Frank Waldrop, Father Edmund A. Walsh, Matthew Woll, Frederick Woltman, General Robert E. Wood.

If I had taken 1945 as my date, I should have had another list which would have included several ex-Russian spies, many anti-Communists who had confessed and established their contrition. Also, such a list would include some who hated Hitler so bitterly that for a time they took Stalin as the less offensive of the two. It might also include some to whom Roosevelt could do no wrong and who therefore played the Communist front game up to the death of the principal author of Teheran and Yalta.

But I preferred to play with 1940 as a more suitable date, because many of these men and women made sacrifices in career and peace of mind to continue this battle against the enemies of our country. They stood by their principles without regard to the atmosphere of the moment.

Some of the names of this list are unpopular for reasons other than their anti-Stalinism, and some are antagonistic to each other, but each did his or her share to alert our people. Had they been taken seriously, we should today not be in our present troubles.

POUCHES IN LINING OF LARGE BOWEL

When a patient complains of uneasiness, distress or pain in abdomen with considerable gas and also most constant constipation, the physician, if patient is middle-aged or over, may suggest an X-ray examination.

An X-ray examination of stomach, small and large intestine consists of giving two or more ounces of barium sulphate in buttermilk or other liquid 14 hours after the last meal eaten. The patient is examined (under X-ray) a few minutes after, then four to six hours after, and then once a day for several days, as it may take as long as a week or more for the barium to pass out of the body.

Instead of ulcer or cancer, the X-ray may reveal diverticulosis of lower end of large intestine (colon). Diverticulosis consists of little pouches or pockets in the lining of the colon. As the waste matter gets into these pockets, it putrefies and causes the gas and other symptoms present.

Drs. Franklin H. Goodwin and E. N. Collins, in Cleveland Clinic Quarterly, state that in a series investigated, 75 per cent of the 726 consecutive patients were 50 years of age or over, and 65 per cent were overweight. In addition to the distress across the abdomen, some patients suffered with nausea and vomiting and some with diarrhea (irritable colon) and a considerable number (121) had some real or organic disease of the stomach or gall bladder.

Now the fact that there were so many cases of organic disease present with diverticulosis should not frighten these patients who have an irritable colon. It should, however, cause them to agree to an X-ray examination of the whole digestive tract.

Treatment of these cases of diverticulosis consists first of trying to prevent future complications. Emotional upsets and physical and mental exhaustion should be avoided. Small weekly or bi-weekly doses of barium sulphate (two ounces in glass of buttermilk) may be given as this substance gets into the diverticuli (pockets), seals them over and prevents putrification of waste matter. The diet should be free of seeds, skin and coarse fibres, and there should be plenty of rest within the 14 hours, plenty of fluids and regular bowel movements. If stools are hard, a three-ounce oil enema should be placed in bowel before retiring and left overnight.

Constipation

It has been estimated that there are more persons with constipation than there are without it. For information on this subject, write today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "Constipation." Among Those Interested in the Outcome

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—One of the big things bothering Congress about drafting 18-year-olds is the problem which Winston Churchill pounded home on President Roosevelt when he opposed a second front across the English Channel.

"I do not," said the prime minister in typical Churchillian language, "propose to lose the seed of the British Empire."

What he had in mind was the fact that in 1914, the cream of Britain's young men had been shipped across the English Channel and mowed down in Flanders. Those first waves of troops that went to Belgium included the best-trained men in the nation.

Today it is a recognized fact in both England and France that national leadership is more difficult because of those 1914-15 casualties. Men who were 18 and 19 during the battle of Flanders would be 54 and 55 today, and in their prime for leadership. But their ranks were seriously decimated.

In the United States today the question of drafting 18-year-olds is serious for another reason. They are what are known as depression babies—born during the nadir of the depression in 1932.

In those depression years babies were fewer. People couldn't afford them. And many congressmen now feel we cannot afford to lose too much of the "seed" of the nation.

This also applies to 19-year-olds, and will apply to the youngsters who become 18 next year and the year after. All are depression babies. That's why more thought is being given to some system whereby education can be continued along with military training.

Prayer—Not Pressure

A group of lobbyists who specialize in prayer—instead of pressure—called on G.O.P. Congressman George Bender of Ohio the other day.

The delegation included Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Mennonites and members of other faiths from Wooster, Ohio. After talking over domestic and world problems with Bender, one of the visitors suggested:

"Let us kneel and pray that Congress will get the divine guidance it needs in the days ahead."

Bender knelt with his callers.

"Those kind of lobbyists don't have to register with the clerk of the House," remarked the hefty Ohioan, who won back his Congressional seat in November. "They are registered up yonder."

27-Cent Dollar

The housewives probably won't be surprised at this, though the figures look pretty bad on paper. However, the inescapable fact is that the 1939 dollar is now worth only 27 cents, when it comes to buying such everyday items as butter, coffee, cocoa, sugar, silk and print cloth.

This is shown in the price increases of 28 commodities, compiled daily by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In other words, fihat a dollar would buy in 1939 now costs approximately $3.65. This is a measure of how the dollar's purchasing power has dwindled for the following commodities: Barley, burlap, butter, cocoa bean, coffee, copper, corn, cotton, cottonseed oil, flaxseed, hides, hogs, lard, lead, print cloth, rosin, rubber, shellac, silk, steel scrap, steers, sugar, tallow, tin, wheat, wool tops and zinc.

Who Killed Price Control

Members of the administration will admit in their off-moments that blame for the present zooming cost of living goes straight up to the White House itself.

In the first place, the Republicans were smart enough to give the President all the power to control prices he wanted—and then some. And he has failed to use them. Congress extended these powers late last summer but they have lain dormant ever since.

Second, the President has failed to pick experienced men to handle price-wage control, though he had a handful of experts around the corner whom he could have called in overnight.

However, Harry Truman has a strange quirk—psychiatrists might call it an inferiority complex—about using Roosevelt personnel. He wants to stand on his own feet. Probably this was the reason why he did not call in the men who grew up with price control and on the whole did an amazingly good job—Leon Henderson, Chester Bowles and Paul Porter.

Leon Henderson, who set up O.P.A. offices all over the country in record time, is still in Washington as a consultant for private business. Chester Bowles has just finished a term as governor of Connecticut. Paul Porter is practicing law. None are looking for trouble, much prefer to stick to their own knitting, but they would have helped out nonetheless—if asked. But they weren't even asked to help as consultants.

Instead, complete greenhorns were selected for the toughest job in the entire U.S.A.—controlling prices and wages and making people like it.

Note—Another wise counselor on the domestic economic front is Bernard M. Baruch, who also was left on the sidelines. The reason: Mr. Truman's yearning for letter-writing. He wrote Bernie one of his hottest.

Acheson and Seward

North Dakota's big, homespun Congressman Usher L. Burdick, a Republican, compares the current attacks on Secretary of State Dean Acheson with the Civil War attacks on William Henry Seward, also secretary of state.

"Let us turn over the musty pages of the War Between the States," says Burdick. "We got licked twice at Bull Run and our army beat it back across the Potomac in a panic. Lincoln and his secretary of state, Seward, found themselves in a sea of criticism. Newspapers demanded the ouster of Seward and said Lincoln was not to be trusted. Lincoln stood firm, cool and collected. He kept his secretary of state and went about the job of winning the war."

The congressman, a writer of many historical books, cautions: "Remember what happened in this country before. Remember that cool heads lead the way to victory."

Senate, House Take Unusual Step of Branding Red China Aggressor Nation in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 24—The Congress of the United States by a unanimous vote of both Houses has taken the unprecedented step of notifying the United Nations that Red China should be declared an aggressor.

This carries with it the implication that the Congress — which alone possesses the war-making power under our Constitution—is ready to proclaim, if necessary, a naval blockade of Red China and to apply economic penalities by shutting off all trade.

The entire world has been told now that the American government, irrespective of party, stands united on the issue of declaring Red China an aggressor. Soviet Russia and Red China are now aware that, whatever may have been the dissensions of the past here on foreign policy, there is unanimity now on the matter of resisting aggression.

The action of both Houses of Congress is of far-reaching importance whether or not the U. N. votes favorably on the American resolution to brand Red China as the aggressor. Had the motion in the U. N. been adopted without the passage of a congressional resolution, there might have been doubts abroad as to the extent to which the Congress would go in backing up the executive here.

If, on the other hand, the U. N. now fails to muster the necessary majority for the adoption of the American resolution, the U. N. members will face a rather embarrassing situation. The United States will have to decide then whether to go it alone in the Far East or whether to consider the U. N. has failed in dealing with aggression. Such a failure could mean that, in any future aggressions by any other nations, the United States would feel free to disassociate itself and act alone.

Clearly the future of the U. N. as an effective instrument of international policy hangs in the balance. America may have to develop foreign policies now without regard to the collective action of the assembly and may consider a move to abandon the plan whereby a majority of the nations can take collective measures in defense of the charter. Thus the U. N. might have to become merely a debating forum and not a parliament of nations.

The United States, as the sponsor of the recent move to utilize the assembly for the promulgation of measures to resist aggression, can with consistency urge that the problem of aggression hereafter be dealt with by regional agreements. This would mean that reciprocal treaties or agreements could be made whereby other nations would be aided by the United States only on condition that they pledge themselves to furnish aid to this country when its interests are jeopardized through the aggression of a third state.

The hesitation of Great Britain and other member nations to vote immediately for a resolution by the U.N. to declare Red China an aggressor has alienated many people here who hitherto have been ready to excuse the dilatoriness of the Attlee government. Such apologies are no longer heard. For the Attlee government has repeatedly shown itself much more concerned about its investments in Hong Kong than in the continued support of the United States.

In the final analysis, it is predicted that the British will reluctantly go along with American policy. But the cost already has been considerable and Anglo-American relations have suffered an injury which only a Churchill may some day be able to heal.

Out of all the resolutions voted by Congress, what stands out is the Senate resolution, also adopted unanimously, which would bar Red China from admission to the U.N. This alone ought to accentuate to European countries the lengths to which American legislators have been provoked to go by the appeasement policies sponsored by the Attlee government, India and the Arab countries. Plainly America is beginning to discover that she has fewer friends among the nations of the world in a showdown than she thought she had.

Would the United States some day, if Britain is attacked and the U.N. spends several weeks debating whether Soviet Russia is an aggressor, hesitate to condemn aggression? The British government may well ask itself that question today in fairness to the American people.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Jan. 23—I agree with President Truman that this war of his is going to cost so much that everybody will have to make sacrifices. I am quite willing to pay my share, whatever it may be. But Harry S. Truman is not paying his fair share and I resent his special privilege and demand that Congress revoke the law granting him an outright graft of $50,000 a year in the guise of expense money, subject to neither accounting nor taxation. This is the most arrogant assertion of special privilege ever pulled off by a political gang, who have come to regard themselves not as agents and servants of the American people but as our rulers. It is corrupt practice.

Inasmuch as Mr. Truman hasn't got the decency to repudiate the graft and the corrupt intention of Congress in passing the law, public opinion should compel Congress to repeal it. The invitation to make a handsome gesture of honor lapsed when he failed to veto a bill that was rushed through the 81st Congress just before his inauguration. This rush-act was an obvious trick because the Constitution provides that the President's compensation "shall neither be increased nor diminished during the term for which he shall have been elected." The present term to which he was "elected" began on Jan. 20, 1949. This was his Congress, the 81st, which had returned Truman's party to power after his abusive campaign against the Republican 80th Congress.

It can be strongly argued that the $50,000 graft never has been legal because Truman was "elected" for the term in which the raise was put through. That is to say, he was elected vice president with a constitutional proviso that he should become President in case of Roosevelt's death. The [illegible] was put through in the last hours of the term. The constitution provides another explict forbiddance against this crooked device wherein it says further that the President "shall not receive any other emolument from the United States—during his term of office.

That word "other" shows that the founding fathers held that emolument and compensation meant the same thing.

The title of the act which accomplished this vicious fraud with its corrosive and disruptive influence on the morals of the body of citizens says the President's "compensation," the term used to define his pay in the constitution, shall include an expense allowance at the rate of $50,000 per annum. Therefore, it is seen that Congress didn't even take the trouble to mask the graft. The $50,000 was included in the President's "compensation." To be sure, it was dishonestly described as an "expense allowance," but it is still compensation and therefore income by an honest interpretation of the fateful Sixteenth Amendment, which wiped out the old relationship between the American people and the federal government. It made the people abject slaves of Congress whose entire income "from whatever source derived" belonged by right and by law to the government.

Not many citizens, and few of the Senators and Congressmen, then understood the terrible meaning of the lack of any limitation on the power of Congress to take the income of the people. Had the amendment limited that grasping power to 20 per cent or 30 per cent the people still would have been masters of their government. But when the amendment went through with the approval of a dumb, selfish electorate whose only thought was to sock the rich,

MANKIND'S GREATEST DREAM

Lasting peace is mankind's greatest dream. In war and out, the goal is never lost sight of. Noble experiments, like the League of Nations and the United Nations, are begun in its name.

When war threatens, the magic of the word "peace" is invoked with especial fervor on many sides. Understandably—since only the most diabolic of men consciously plunge the globe into the holocaust of war.

But in the tense days on the approaches to the abyss, certain categories of men come to feel that somehow they are the particular guardians of peace. They come to believe that they revere it and desire it more than most others.

In the struggle against Russian communism, Prime Minister Nehru of India sees himself in such a role. He talks and acts as if responsible men in other free nations do not want peace and are actually committed to war.

He declares in effect that the task of the honorable peacelover is to stand aloof from the "sordid" conflict between East and West, to keep from becoming entangled in it. He sees the true seeker after peace as a mediator, a compromiser of this struggle.

No one would wish for an instant to detract from Nehru's idealism, or from the high principles which motivate any sincere advocate of peace. But it is apparent that he, and many of his kind, do not appreciate the essence of meaningful peace.

Peace is not simply the absence of shooting. Nor is it non-violence purchased at the price of surrender of the world's finest ideals of freedom and fulfillment. You do not mediate or compromise with murder. Nor do you bend your knee abjectly before naked, brutal aggression.

Peace that yields all power to evil forces is not the goal mankind seeks. War is a fabric of unspeakable horrors, but it is better than a peace which crowns evil as the victor.

The kind of peace that men all around the globe yearn for can have no taint of subservience to evil. Real peace has very special qualities.

It is based, first of all, upon international justice. That's a mouthful our statesmen often utter but don't bother to explain. What it means is that peace, to have lasting worth, must provide a fair prospect of self-fulfillment for all nations and all peoples. Oppression or slavery or degradation in any corner of the earth menace the structure of peace.

Peace is founded, too, on sound principles of international morality. It is not the product of immoral trading with an evil enemy. It is not the product of political deals with totalitarian force. Such deals are not steps to peace, Mr. Nehru. They are non-military victories for the enemy of peace.

A real peace is not static. It is not a vacuum. It is a positive thing. It must be waged with the same vigor as war. Its fundamental qualities must be guarded jealously if and when they are achieved.

Indeed, there are times when free man must be willing to fight for that kind of peace, contradition though this may seem.

For it is not the mere quiet of a gun-stilled world that we strive. It is for a condition among men that will make the firing of guns a course of action never to be considered.

Americans did a lot of inhaling last year—and a great part of it went into consuming more than 361,000,000,000 cigarettes.

IKE'S BIG JOB

General Dwight D. Eisenhower's European mission has many angles besides the simple military one. Observers in Europe claim that the question of morale is even greater.

European government circles are said to be confused by our current debate on foreign policy. They realize that although the Republicans are not now in power they may very well be before the present rearmament program is completed. This fact gives rise to fear that American support may not fill the role which has been assigned to it in Europe.

Few generals in history have been given a task which demanded so much in diplomacy, common sense and political knowledge as does that of General Eisenhower.

The pitter-patter of raindrops is sleep-impelling music—as long as the roof doesn't leak.

If I had taken 1945 as my date, I should have had another list which would have included several ex-Russian spies, many anti-Communists who had confessed and established their contrition. But I preferred to play with 1940 as a more suitable date, because many of these men and women made sacrifices in career and peace of mind to continue this battle against the enemies of our country. They stood by their principles without regard to the atmosphere of the moment.

Some of the names of this list are unpopular for reasons other than their anti-Stalinism, and some are antagonistic to each other, but each did his or her share to alert our people. Had they been taken seriously, we should today not be in our present troubles.

When a patient complains of uneasiness, distress or pain in abdomen with considerable gas and almost constant constipation, the physician, if patient is middle-aged or over, may suggest an X-ray examination.

An X-ray examination of stomach, small and large intestine consists of giving two or more ounces of barium sulphate in buttermilk or other liquid 14 hours after the last meal eaten. The patient is examined (under X-ray) a few minutes after, then four to six hours after, and then once a day for several days, as it may take as long as a week or more for the barium to pass out of the body.

Instead of ulcer or cancer, the X-ray may reveal diverticulosis of lower end of large intestine (colon). Diverticulosis consists of little pouches or pockets in the lining of the colon. As the waste matter gets into these pockets, it putrefies and causes the gas and other symptoms present.

Drs. Franklin H. Goodwin and E. N. Collins, in Cleveland Clinic Quarterly, state that in a series investigated, 75 per cent of the 726 consecutive patients were 50 years of age or over, and 65 per cent were overweight. In addition to the distress across the abdomen, some patients suffered with nausea and vomiting and some with diarrhea (irritable colon) and a considerable number (121) had some real or organic disease of the stomach or gall bladder.

Now the fact that there were so many cases of organic disease present with diverticulosis should not frighten these patients who have an irritable colon. It should, however, cause them to agree to an X-ray examination of the whole digestive tract.

Treatment of these cases of diverticulosis consists first of trying to prevent future complications. Emotional upsets and physical and mental exhaustion should be avoided. Small weekly or bi-weekly doses of barium sulphate (two ounces in glass of buttermilk) may be given as this substance gets into the diverticuli (pockets), seals them over and prevents putrification of waste matter. The diet should be free of seeds, skin and coarse fibres, and there should be plenty of rest within the 14 hours, plenty of fluids and regular bowel movements. If stools are hard, a three-ounce oil enema should be placed in bowel before retiring and left overnight.

Constipation

It has been estimated that there are more persons with constipation than there are without it. For information on this subject, write today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "Constipation." Among Those Interested in the Outcome

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—One of the big things bothering Congress about drafting 18-year-olds is the problem which Winston Churchill pounded home on President Roosevelt when he opposed a second front across the English Channel.

"I do not," said the prime minister in typical Churchillian language, "propose to lose the seed of the British Empire."

What he had in mind was the fact that in 1914, the cream of Britain's young men had been shipped across the English Channel and moved down in Flanders. Those first waves of troops that went to Belgium included the best-trained men in the nation.

Today it is a recognized fact in both England and France that national leadership is more difficult because of those 1914-15 casualties. Men who were 18 and 19 during the battle of Flanders would be 54 and 55 today, and in their prime for leadership. But their ranks were seriously decimated.

In the United States today the question of drafting 18-year-olds is serious for another reason. They are what are known as depression babies—born during the nadir of the depression in 1932.

In those depression years babies were fewer. People couldn't afford them. And many congressmen now feel we cannot afford to lose too much of the "seed" of the nation.

This also applies to 19-year-olds, and will apply to the youngsters who become 18 next year and the year after. All are depression babies. That's why more thought is being given to some system whereby education can be continued along with military training.

Prayer—Not Pressure

A group of lobbyists who specialize in prayer—instead of pressure—called on G.O.P. Congressman George Bender of Ohio the other day.

The delegation included Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Mennonites and members of other faiths from Wooster, Ohio. After talking over domestic and world problems with Bender, one of the visitors suggested:

"Let us kneel and pray that Congress will get the divine guidance it needs in the days ahead."

Bender knelt with his callers.

"Those kind of lobbyists don't have to register with the clerk of the House," remarked the hefty Ohioan, who won back his Congressional seat in November. "They are registered up yonder."

27-Cent Dollar

The housewives probably won't be surprised at this, though the figures look pretty bad on paper. However, the inescapable fact is that the 1939 dollar is now worth only 27 cents, when it comes to buying such everyday items as butter, coffee, cocoa, sugar, silk and print cloth.

This is shown in the price increases of 28 commodities, compiled daily by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In other words, fihat a dollar would buy in 1939 now costs approximately $3.65. This is a measure of how the dollar's purchasing power has dwindled for the following commodities: Barley, burlap, butter, cocoa bean, coffee, copper, corn, cotton, cottonseed oil, flaxseed, hides, hogs, lard, lead, print cloth, rosin, rubber, shellac, silk, steel scrap, steers, sugar, tallow, tin, wheat, wool tops and zinc.

Who Killed Price Control

Members of the administration will admit in their off-moments that blame for the present zooming cost of living goes straight up to the White House itself.

In the first place, the Republicans were smart enough to give the President all the power to control prices he wanted—and then some. And he has failed to use them. Congress extended these powers late last summer but they have lain dormant ever since.

Second, the President has failed to pick experienced men to handle price-wage control, though he had a handful of experts around the corner whom he could have called in overnight.

However, Harry Truman has a strange quirk—psychiatrists might call it an inferiority complex—about using Roosevelt personnel. He wants to stand on his own feet. Probably this was the reason why he did not call in the men who grew up with price control and on the whole did an amazingly good job—Leon Henderson, Chester Bowles and Paul Porter.

Leon Henderson, who set up O.P.A. offices all over the country in record time, is still in Washington as a consultant for private business. Chester Bowles has just finished a term as governor of Connecticut. Paul Porter is practicing law. None are looking for trouble, much prefer to stick to their own knitting, but they would have helped out nonetheless—if asked. But they weren't even asked to help as consultants.

Instead, complete greenhorns were selected for the toughest job in the entire U.S.A.—controlling prices and wages and making people like it.

Note—Another wise counselor on the domestic economic front is Bernard M. Baruch, who also was left on the sidelines. The reason: Mr. Truman's yearning for letter-writing. He wrote Bernie one of his hottest.

Acheson and Seward

North Dakota's big, homespun Congressman Usher L. Burdick, a Republican, compares the current attacks on Secretary of State Dean Acheson with the Civil War attacks on William Henry Seward, also secretary of state.

"Let us turn over the musty pages of the War Between the States," says Burdick. "We got licked twice at Bull Run and our army beat it back across the Potomac in a panic. Lincoln and his secretary of state, Seward, found themselves in a sea of criticism. Newspapers demanded the ouster of Seward and said Lincoln was not to be trusted. Lincoln stood firm, cool and collected. He kept his secretary of state and went about the job of winning the war."

The congressman, a writer of many historical books, cautions: "Remember what happened in this country before. Remember that cool heads lead the way to victory."

Senate, House Take Unusual Step of Branding Red China Aggressor Nation in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 24—The Congress of the United States by a unanimous vote of both Houses has taken the unprecedented step of notifying the United Nations that Red China should be declared an aggressor.

This carries with it the implication that the Congress — which alone possesses the war-making power under our Constitution—is ready to proclaim, if necessary, a naval blockade of Red China and to apply economic penalities by shutting off all trade.

The entire world has been told now that the American government, irrespective of party, stands united on the issue of declaring Red China an aggressor. Soviet Russia and Red China are now aware that, whatever may have been the dissensions of the past here on foreign policy, there is unanimity now on the matter of resisting aggression.

The action of both Houses of Congress is of far-reaching importance whether or not the U. N. votes favorably on the American resolution to brand Red China as the aggressor. Had the motion in the U. N. been adopted without the passage of a congressional resolution, there might have been doubts abroad as to the extent to which the Congress would go in backing up the executive here.

If, on the other hand, the U. N. now fails to muster the necessary majority for the adoption of the American resolution, the U. N. members will face a rather embarrassing situation. The United States will have to decide then whether to go it alone in the Far East or whether to consider the U. N. has failed in dealing with aggression. Such a failure could mean that, in any future aggressions by any other nations, the United States would feel free to disassociate itself and act alone.

Clearly the future of the U. N. as an effective instrument of international policy hangs in the balance. America may have to develop foreign policies now without regard to the collective action of the assembly and may consider a move to abandon the plan whereby a majority of the nations can take collective measures in defense of the charter. Thus the U. N. might have to become merely a debating forum and not a parliament of nations.

The United States, as the sponsor of the recent move to utilize the assembly for the promulgation of measures to resist aggression, can with consistency urge that the problem of aggression hereafter be dealt with by regional agreements. This would mean that reciprocal treaties or agreements could be made whereby other nations would be aided by the United States only on condition that they pledge themselves to furnish aid to this country when its interests are jeopardized through the aggression of a third state.

The hesitation of Great Britain and other member nations to vote immediately for a resolution by the U.N. to declare Red China an aggressor has alienated many people here who hitherto have been ready to excuse the dilatoriness of the Attlee government. Such apologies are no longer heard. For the Attlee government has repeatedly shown itself much more concerned about its investments in Hong Kong than in the continued support of the United States.

In the final analysis, it is predicted that the British will reluctantly go along with American policy. But the cost already has been considerable and Anglo-American relations have suffered an injury which only a Churchill may some day be able to heal.

Out of all the resolutions voted by Congress, what stands out is the Senate resolution, also adopted unanimously, which would bar Red China from admission to the U.N. This alone ought to accentuate to European countries the lengths to which American legislators have been provoked to go by the appeasement policies sponsored by the Attlee government, India and the Arab countries. Plainly America is beginning to discover that she has fewer friends among the nations of the world in a showdown than she thought she had.

Would the United States some day, if Britain is attacked and the U.N. spends several weeks debating whether Soviet Russia is an aggressor, hesitate to condemn aggression? The British government may well ask itself that question today in fairness to the American people.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Jan. 23—I agree with President Truman that this war of his is going to cost so much that everybody will have to make sacrifices. I am quite willing to pay my share, whatever it may be. But Harry S. Truman is not paying his fair share and I resent his special privilege and demand that Congress revoke the law granting him an outright graft of $50,000 a year in the guise of expense money, subject to neither accounting nor taxation. This is the most arrogant assertion of special privilege ever pulled off by a political gang, who have come to regard themselves not as agents and servants of the American people but as our rulers. It is corrupt practice.

Inasmuch as Mr. Truman hasn't got the decency to repudiate the graft and the corrupt intention of Congress in passing the law, public opinion should compel Congress to repeal it. The invitation to make a handsome gesture of honor lapsed when he failed to veto a bill that was rushed through the 81st Congress just before his inauguration. This rush-act was an obvious trick because the Constitution provides that the President's compensation "shall neither be increased nor diminished during the term for which he shall have been elected." The present term to which he was "elected" began on Jan. 20, 1949. This was his Congress, the 81st, which had returned Truman's party to power after his abusive campaign against the Republican 80th Congress.

It can be strongly argued that the $50,000 graft never has been legal because Truman was "elected" for the term in which the raise was put through. That is to say, he was elected vice president with a constitutional proviso that he should become President in case of Roosevelt's death. The $50,000 [illegible] put through in the last hours of the term. The constitution provides another explict forbiddance against this crooked device wherein it says further that the President "shall not receive any other emolument from the United States—during his term of office.

That word "other" shows that the founding fathers held that emolument and compensation meant the same thing.

The title of the act which accomplished this vicious fraud with its corrosive and disruptive influence on the morals of the body of citizens says the President's "compensation," the term used to define his pay in the constitution, shall include an expense allowance at the rate of $50,000 per annum. Therefore, it is seen that Congress didn't even take the trouble to mask the graft. The $50,000 was included in the President's "compensation." To be sure, it was dishonestly described as an "expense allowance," but it is still compensation and therefore income by an honest interpretation of the fateful Sixteenth Amendment, which wiped out the old relationship between the American people and the federal government. It made the people abject slaves of Congress whose entire income "from whatever source derived" belonged by right and by law to the government.

Not many citizens, and few of the Senators and Congressmen, then understood the terrible meaning of the lack of any limitation on the power of Congress to take the income of the people. Had the amendment limited that grasping power to 20 per cent or 50 per cent the people still would have been masters of their government. But when the amendment went through with the approval of a dumb, selfish electorate whose only thought was to sock the rich,

Social Security For Victims of Railroad Disaster

Insurance payments in excess of $1,022,550 are payable under the social security program to members of 55 families out of a total of 79 persons killed in the Long Island Railroad disaster of November 22, 1950.

This was reported today by Joseph B. O'Connor, regional director of the Federal Security Agency, who administers the social security program in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

"The fatal accident vividly points out the security value to surviving dependents under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program of the Social Security Act," said Mr. O'Connor. "Of the 55 wage earners who were insured under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program, when death struck, 41 left widows with 79 children under the age of 18. These widows will receive monthly benefits until the youngest child in each family reaches the age of 18. When these widows attain the age of 65, the monthly benefit payments will be resumed."

"At the present time these families are receiving a total of $4,541.50 in monthly benefits, representing an average of $110.77 per family," O'Connor said. "Twelve additional widows, without children in their care, have received lump sum death payments and will receive monthly benefits when they reach 65. Calculated on an expectancy of 15 years after reaching age 65, these 53 widows are eligible for an estimated deferred annuity of $8,500.

"Benefits payable to the 79 children will continue in each family until the youngest child reaches the age of 18. Several of the surviving children were born in the year 1950, and will be entitled to receive benefits until the year 1968.

"Lump sum payments, which are now payable under the 1950 amendments in all death cases, have been paid to 55 claimants. They have received $10,087.60.

"Some of those who were not covered under the Social Security Act had coverage under the Railroad Retirement Act, while others were students and self-employed individuals, and excluded." O'Connor concluded that "as of January 1, 1957, self-employed persons are now covered and their families will be protected in case of death."

Student Tickets Planned For Winter Concerts

Woodstock, Jan. 23—The Woodstock winter concerts committee has decided to make available, for the first time in the three years since the concerts were inaugurated, a group of student tickets, so that students may attend the first concert on Sunday, Jan. 28, at 3:30 p. m. at the Town Hall.

One of the most important factors, it has been felt in the village, is the close proximity of the new school to the many facilities, both in art and music, which the town has to offer.

Any student wishing to purchase a ticket may do so, either through the Woodstock school, or from any member of the concert committee at a nominal price. Because of the broken schedule of the schools this week, arrangements have not yet been made for the sale of tickets at Kingston High School, but they will be made for the second concert in March. Student tickets, however, may also be purchased at the box office on the day of the concert.

Infringement Charged

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Allen B. Dumont Laboratories was charged with infringement of color television patent rights in a federal court suit filed yesterday by the Columbia Broadcasting System. Dumont later issued a statement insisting that there had been no irregularities in its research.

Eisenhower Faces

given them some increased confidence. How much will be indicated by what they do when he returns in February and begins laying out hard plans—and hard demands.

But what is giving the most confidence in the west's chances are toiling, whirring gears in the factories of Detroit, Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland, Seattle, Los Angeles—and in the mysterious chemical workings in American atom plants.

Knouse Declares

aid the farmer, Knouse contended that "all the schemes and devices so far have failed to change this particular program." He added that he believes "all of us are convinced that it is not a job for the government and it is impossible for the government, through subsidies, to accomplish much for the farmer."

"We believe some of the things the government has done have given temporary relief. We believe that much of the effort of the government has been sincere effort. (Nevertheless) I believe it is not possible to solve agricultural problems through direct purchases and subsidies."

Offers Recommendation

Knouse presented to the group these recommendations:

1. Continuance of the government's research program.
2. Adequate marketing organization, packing and processing plants, warehouse and cold storage facilities for the farmers.

To accomplish the latter, capital is needed, and here the government may be of assistance, according to Knouse' theory. He called upon the government to lend such funds "as are not available through regular banking facilities."

He stressed this government service should not be a gift, but a loan "which is expected to be paid back."

He recommended putting one-half the crop through processing channels so that the production of orchards can be spread out over a 12-month period "in orderly markets." Under the present set-up, he said, the farmer without facilities for holding his crop is often obligated to sell merchandise at a sacrifice, creating an artificially depressed market.

Heincke Reports

Reporting on the outlook for this year in the state apple industry, Dr. Arthur J. Heincke, director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, told the growers this morning that they "won't be worrying about excess profits during the coming years, and the income they do have will be subject to much higher taxes."

He said the prospects are for a smaller fruit crop, with the possible exception of peaches, in 1951. With high employment at good wages, "It is reasonable to expect better prices for the 1951 crops than we received for the 1950 crops," he added.

Apple plantings in the state declined from 185,700 acres in 1934 to 154,000 acres at present, he reported. In spite of the acreage drop, the production of apples actually rose because of the elimination of many poor orchards and better care of the remaining orchards. He cited an increase in per capita fruit consumption from 180 pounds in 1934 to 217 pounds in 1950, but the increase was mostly in citrus fruits. Consumption of non-citrus fruits dropped from 130 to 125 pounds per person, he said.

Brunk Gives Report

A report of his marketing survey was given this morning by Dr. Max E. Brunk, Cornell agricultural economist. He cited figures showing that the New York state housewife bought more apples in six-pound transparent packages than in any other way of merchandising that was tried.

He suggested that part of the decline in apple consumption in recent years may have been caused by modern merchandising methods tending to price produce items in two and three-pound units. Twenty per cent more apples were sold in six-pound units than in four-pound units, and purchases dropped 35 per cent when the size of the package was reduced from four to two pounds, he said.

"A bulk display is no way to sell apples," he said, reporting that bulk sales amounted to 12½ pounds for 100 customers, while it jumped to more than 20 pounds when apples packaged in transparent film were added to the bulk display.

those of U.N. forces might be as much as 20 to 1. Such a rate, if long continued, could help considerably in evening the manpower advantage the Reds had when they started their offensive early last month.

The Korean winter is hard on American fighting men, but the clothing and equipment of American troops is the best in the world, the army claims—certainly far better than that of the Chinese Red forces, even though they are trained and experienced in fighting in North China winters.

search of peace," he added: "To the nations of Asia I can speak perhaps in even more intimate language, and express the fervent hope they will stand by the methods of peace, whatever happens."

Nehru made no direct mention in his address of India's efforts to obtain from the United States 2,000,000 tons of food grains at a concession. But he did refer briefly to India's pressing food problems, and he warned the people they might have to tighten their belts until food is obtained from abroad.

Among friends attending the rites at the Veterans Administration Cemetery Chapel were Ronald Colman, Nigel Bruce, Tim McCoy, Hal Roach and Aileen Pringle, along with his son, Tim, a cowboy actor, and his daughter, Jennifer, a television actress.

Loan Is Granted

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The World Bank has granted $50,000,000 in loans to the Union of South Africa to build up that country's transport and electric power systems. Bank President Eugene R. Black announced yesterday that South Africa also has arranged to borrow another $30,000,000 from U. S. private banks.

Student Tickets Planned For Winter Concerts

Woodstock, Jan. 23—The Woodstock winter concerts committee has decided to make available, for the first time in the three years since the concerts were inaugurated, a group of student tickets, so that students may attend the first concert on Sunday, Jan. 28, at 3:30 p. m. at the Town Hall.

One of the most important factors, it has been felt in the village, is the close proximity of the new school to the many facilities, both in art and music, which the town has to offer.

Any student wishing to purchase a ticket may do so, either through the Woodstock school, or from any member of the concert committee at a nominal price. Because of the broken schedule of the schools this week, arrangements have not yet been made for the sale of tickets at Kingston High School, but they will be made for the second concert in March. Student tickets, however, may also be purchased at the box office on the day of the concert.

Infringement Charged

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Allen B. Dumont Laboratories was charged with infringement of color television patent rights in a federal court suit filed yesterday by the Columbia Broadcasting System. Dumont later issued a statement insisting that there had been no irregularities in its research.

given them some increased confidence. How much will be indicated by what they do when he returns in February and begins laying out hard plans—and hard demands.

But what is giving the most confidence in the west's chances are toiling, whirring gears in the factories of Detroit, Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland, Seattle, Los Angeles—and in the mysterious chemical workings in American atom plants.

Knouse Declares

aid the farmer, Knouse contended that "all the schemes and devices so far have failed to change this particular program." He added that he believes "all of us are convinced that it is not a job for the government and it is impossible for the government, through subsidies, to accomplish much for the farmer."

"We believe some of the things the government has done have given temporary relief. We believe that much of the effort of the government has been sincere effort. (Nevertheless) I believe it is not possible to solve agricultural problems through direct purchases and subsidies."

Offers Recommendation

Knouse presented to the group these recommendations:

1. Continuance of the government's research program.
2. Adequate marketing organization, packing and processing plants, warehouse and cold storage facilities for the farmers.

To accomplish the latter, capital is needed, and here the government may be of assistance, according to Knouse' theory. He called upon the government to lend such funds "as are not available through regular banking facilities."

He stressed this government service should not be a gift, but a loan "which is expected to be paid back."

He recommended putting one-half the crop through processing channels so that the production of orchards can be spread out over a 12-month period "in orderly markets." Uuder the present set-up, he said, the farmer without facilities for holding his crop is often obligated to sell merchandise at a sacrifice, creating an artifically depressed market.

Heinecke Reports

Reporting on the outlook for this year in the state apple industry, Dr. Arthur J. Heincke, director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, told the growers this morning that they "won't be worrying about excess profits during the coming years, and the income they do have will be subject to much higher taxes."

He said the prospects are for a smaller fruit crop, with the possible exception of peaches, in 1951. With high employment at good wages, "it is reasonable to expect better prices for the 1951 crops than we received for the 1950 crops," he added.

Apple plantings in the state declined from 185,700 acres in 1934 to 154,000 acres at present, he reported. In spite of the acreage drop, the production of apples actually rose because of the elimination of many poor orchards and better care of the remaining orchards. He cited an increase in per capita fruit consumption from 180 pounds in 1934 to 217 pounds in 1950, but the increase was mostly in citrus fruits. Consumption of non-citrus fruits dropped from 130 to 125 pounds per person, he said.

Brunk Gives Report

A report of his marketing survey was given this morning by Dr. Max E. Brunk, Cornell agricultural economist. He cited figures showing that the New York state housewife bought more apples in six-pound transparent packages than in any other way of merchandising that was tried.

He suggested that part of the decline in apple consumption in recent years may have been caused by modern merchandising methods tending to price produce items in two and three-pound units. Twenty per cent more apples were sold in six-pound units than in four-pound units, and purchases dropped 35 per cent when the size of the package was reduced from four to two pounds, he said.

"A bulk display is no way to sell apples," he said, reporting that bulk sales amounted to 12½ pounds for 100 customers, while it jumped to more than 20 pounds when apples packaged in transparent film were added to the bulk display.

search of peace," he added: "To the nations of Asia I can speak perhaps in even more intimate language, and express the fervent hope they will stand by the methods of peace, whatever happens."

Nehru made no direct mention in his address of India's efforts to obtain from the United States 2,000,000 tons of food grains at a concession. But he did refer briefly to India's pressing food problems, and he warned the people they might have to tighten their belts until food is obtained from abroad.

New Plant Opens on Airport Site

Shown above is the new building of the Catskill Maintenance Co., formerly operated by John Hood of Catskill which has recently been incorporated and removed to the site of the old Kingston airport on the Sawkill road. While the old company specialized in the construction and fabrication of steel swimming pools, the new corporation, headed by Hood and J. D. Rattray, will primarily be involved in the furthering of defense work. The work will be in line with the fabrication of steel products. The larger plant and modern equipment will enable the new corporation to handle all types of steel fabrication and assembly work in addition to machine shop operations. (Freeman Photo)

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

Of course Kingston had a town crier 100 years ago, his name was Tobias H. Van Steenbergh, and he advertised in the "Ulster Democrat" of October 14, 1851 that he not only was the "Village Cryer," but also posted and circulated bills. I wonder if he carried a bell, if so, where is it now? Perhaps he also wore a special costume but that I guess we'll never know. I wonder if he is related to anyone living here now. Perhaps they would know more about him.

"The Ulster Democrat" was loaned me from the collection of Charles O'Connor. Kingstonians certainly believed in advertising in those days. For instance, for warm days you could buy Preston's Portable Lemonade or Lemon Sugar at C. S. Clay's drug store, corner North Front and Wall streets. Clay's adv. read in part: "For making at any moment pure and rich lemonade of excellent flavor not distinguishable from that made from the fresh fruit." So you see 100 years ago, they already went in for synthetic flavors right here in Kingston.

According to a picture in one of the advs. in that 100 year old paper the looks of false teeth didn't improve much up to this day. The upper plate advertises Wm. B. Finch, M.D., surgeon dentist, which adv. states he moved to the Brick Building on Wall street three doors south from Clay's Drug Store, over H. J. Tappen's. He gave as references many medical men and several ministers.

I wish my readers could enjoy with me the cut used on P. T. Barnum's coming to Kingston, Saturday, October 25, 1851. It shows 10 elephants superbly caparisoned in Hindoo extravagance pulling a large car of Juggernaut on which sits an orchestra, so it seems. One of the descriptions which interested my father was: "A baby elephant, only six months old and three and a half feet in height, will carry upon his back around the interior of the colossal pavillion, the Lilliputian General Tom Thumb. The magnificent cortege comprises 110 horses and 90 men. The Pavillion of Exhibition will accommodate 15,000 spectators at once. All the finest wild animals ever exhibited in this country are now attached to this exhibition, being selected at an immense cost from the various minor establishments North and South."

"Six beautiful lions, fresh from their native forests. A Burmese bull, from the Island of Ceylon, worshiped there by the pagan natives and recently taken from their idolatrous temple. The drove of elephants were captured in the jungles of Central Ceylon by Messrs. Stebbins, June and George Nutter, accompanied by 190 natives, after a pursuit of three weeks and four days in the jungles. They were finally entrapped and secure in a Kraal or Indian Trap, of enormous dimensions and prodigious strength, where the elephants were subdued. The Calf Elephant accompanies its dam, and was weaned on its passage from India. A Native Ceylon Chief belonging to the wild and wandering tribe of Kaffirs, whose ferocious habits are described by Eugene Sue, accompanies the elephants. A magnificent Brass Band will play during the exhibition and accompany the Triumphal Procession."

The band also performed when the procession entered Kingston. The year before 1850—P. T. Barnum brought Jenny Lind, the famous Swedish Nightingale to America. In 1851 Barnum also brought his famous Wax Museum to Kingston. Life size statuary, of presidents and other famous men.

As Pegler Sees It

Congress became a despotic body.

I have on my desk a letter from a wretched woman who had been visiting her husband in a federal prison. He is a doing a year and a day for an income tax "fraud." You may say that it serves the fellow right. But what do you say about Harry Truman's privilege of immunity from reporting or accounting for an income of $50,000 a year ostensibly for expenses incidental to do his office? We know that these expenses are thoroughly provided for in other funds. We know that the Trumans are typical non-spending, mid-western hicks. They wouldn't know how to throw a party even if they were of a mind to take the rubber off the roll. These facts we do know. But do the people also know that the same law that put over this graft also provided $1,375,140 for the expenses of the White House office, and for "travel and official entertainment expenses to be accounted for solely on his certificate?" Do they know that he got a $25,000 raise in pay and that he gets another "expense allowance" of $40,000?

"Certificate" means his mere statement, without oath. You are subject to the penalties for perjury.

Complicated, isn't it? You wouldn't suspect that they planned it that way to confuse us, would you?

This woman writes that her husband was denied bail during his appeal and was sent away for a year and a day without an hour to put his business affairs in order. He has been in prison several months already. He probably will have served his entire minimum sentence and be eligible for parole before his wife can manage to get together typewritten records of the testimony and other data needed for the appeal.

That can happen to anyone by means of clever, vindictive political enforcement of the Internal Revenue Act. Remember that one of the great eastern smear-bunds at a rally a few years ago was admonished to invoke the penal provisions of the income tax laws to "get" isolationists.

Meanwhile, as this woman bitterly points out, the traitor Judy Coplon, whose treachery was frankly acknowledged by the Court of Appeal, and Alger Hiss, whose treason was constructively implied in his conviction for perjury, go free on bail. This income-tax prisoner can never be repaid the months he will have spent in prison nor fully compensated for his mental anguish and his wife's even though he should be vindicated on appeal and Congress should pass an appropriation of money to idemnify him. The duty of a citizen to pay taxes has more and more been turned into a menace to his liberty and honor. Not one in a thousand can understand the tangled language. Professional experts make mistakes, and honest errors are crimes.

President Truman is said to be a truly representative common man, the veritable George Spelvin, American, come to glory in the White House. I believe he is. But the trouble is that the common man, George Spelvin, American, is just typical, not ideal. A president should be an ideal American. Spelvin probably would yield to a sordid temptation to get rich in the presidency by special privilege. A president should be above that.

Beef Patties Cut Meat Costs

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

To cut the cost of meat in your menu, double your interest in new recipes that extend meat and use less expensive cuts. These three will help. They use round steak and lamb shanks.

Broiled Dinner Beef Patties
(Serves 3 to 4)

One pound ground round steak, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup chopped onion, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup butter or fortified margarine.

Combine ground steak, salt and onion thoroughly. Shape into patties 1½ inches thick. Place on aluminum foil on broiler pan or rub the pan with fat and omit foil. Place the pan with the surface of the meat about 3 inches from a hot broiler flame. Broil 10 minutes or until the surface of the patties is well browned. Turn and broil 10 minutes more. Heat together the Worcestershire sauce and butter. Serve the sizzling hot patties on hot plates and pour the melted butter over the patties. Serve at once.

Deviled Dinner Beef Patties

Follow the above recipe but add to the beef 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon horseradish and 1 finely mashed clove of garlic. When patties are broiled, add ¼ cup catsup to the butter and Worcestershire sauce and pour over the hot patties.

Braised Lamb Shanks
(Serves 4)

Four lamb shanks (about 2 pounds), 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ cup fat, 2 cups water, 1 cup diced carrots, 1 cup diced potatoes, ½ cup diced celery, ½ cup diced onion, ½ teaspoon thyme (optional).

Season shanks. Brown in hot fat in heavy skillet. Add 2 cups water. Cover and cook slowly or bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 1½ hours. Add diced vegetables and thyme during last 30 minutes. Add more water if necessary. Cook until tender.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, ready-to-eat cereal, soft cooked eggs, enriched toast, butter or fortified margarine, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Toasted English muffins with melted cheese and tomato sauce, apple and cabbage salad, canned fruit, oatmeal cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Braised lamb shanks, mashed potatoes, diced buttered turnips with chopped parsley, enriched bread, butter or fortified margarine, celery, raisin and cranberry pie, coffee, milk.

Vincent G. Connelly, assistant district attorney of Ulster county and chairman of the 1951 Fund Campaign of the Ulster County Chapter, American Red Cross, announced today the appointments of G. Herbert DeKay as public information chairman and A. B. Shufeldt as advance gifts chairman.

In preparation for the Fund Campaign drive, Chairman Connelly named G. Herbert DeKay to the post of public information chairman after considering Mr. DeKay's experience with the local Kiwanis Club and the Boy Scout movement. Mr. DeKay is a past president of the Kiwanis and is associated with the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company.

The appointment of A. B. Shufeldt to the advance gifts chairmanship brings to this post the man who served for the past 10 years as fund campaign chairman for the local Red Cross, and has long been associated with the Y.M.C.A. and other civic enterprises.

New Plant Opens on Airport Site

Shown above is the new building of the Catskill Maintenance Co., formerly operated by John Hood of Catskill which has recently been incorporated and removed to the site of the old Kingston airport on the Sawkill road. While the old company specialized in the construction and fabrication of steel swimming pools, the new corporation, headed by Hood and J. D. Rattray, will primarily be involved in the furthering of defense work. The work will be in line with the fabrication of steel products. The larger plant and modern equipment will enable the new corporation to handle all types of steel fabrication and assembly work in addition to machine shop operations. (Freeman Photo)

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

Of course Kingston had a town crier 100 years ago, his name was Tobias H. Van Steenbergh, and he advertised in the "Ulster Democrat" of October 14, 1851 that he not only was the "Village Cryer," but also posted and circulated bills. I wonder if he carried a bell, if so, where is it now? Perhaps he also wore a special costume but that I guess we'll never know. I wonder if he is related to anyone living here now. Perhaps they would know more about him.

"The Ulster Democrat" was loaned me from the collection of Charles O'Connor. Kingstonians certainly believed in advertising in those days. For instance, for warm days you could buy Preston's Portable Lemonade or Lemon Sugar at C. S. Clay's drug store, corner North Front and Wall streets. Clay's adv. read in part: "For making at any moment pure and rich lemonade of excellent flavor not distinguishable from that made from the fresh fruit." So you see 100 years ago, they already went in for synthetic flavors right here in Kingston.

According to a picture in one of the advs. in that 100 year old paper the looks of false teeth didn't improve much up to this day. The upper plate advertises Wm. B. Finch, M.D., surgeon dentist, which adv. states he moved to the Brick Building on Wall street three doors south from Clay's Drug Store, over H. J. Tappen's. He gave as references many medical men and several ministers.

I wish my readers could enjoy with me the cut used on P. T. Barnum's coming to Kingston, Saturday, October 25, 1851. It shows 10 elephants superbly caparisoned in Hindoo extravagance pulling a large car of Juggernaut on which sits an orchestra, so it seems. One of the descriptions which interested my father was: "A baby elephant, only six months old and three and a half feet in height, will carry upon his back around the interior of the colossal pavillion, the Lilliputian General Tom Thumb. The magnificent cortege comprises 110 horses and 90 men. The Pavillion of Exhibition will accommodate 15,000 spectators at once. All the finest wild animals ever exhibited in this country are now attached to this exhibition, being selected at an immense cost from the various minor establishments North and South."

"Six beautiful lions, fresh from their native forests. A Burmese bull, from the Island of Ceylon, worshiped there by the pagan natives and recently taken from their idolatrous temple. The drove of elephants were captured in the jungles of Central Ceylon by Messrs. Stebbins, June and George Nutter, accompanied by 190 natives, after a pursuit of three weeks and four days in the jungles. They were finally entrapped and secure in a Kraul or Indian Trap, of enormous dimensions and prodigious strength, where the elephants were subdued. The Calf Elephant accompanies its dam, and was weaned on its passage from India. A Native Ceylon Chief belonging to the wild and wandering tribe of Kaffirs, whose ferocious habits are described by Eugene Sue, accompanies the elephants. A magnificent Brass Band will play during the exhibition and accompany the Triumphal Procession."

The band also performed when the procession entered Kingston. The year before 1850—P. T. Barnum brought Jenny Lind, the famous Swedish Nightingale to America. In 1851 Barnum also brought his famous Wax Museum to Kingston. Life size statuary, of presidents and other famous men.

As Pegler Sees It

Congress became a despotic body.

I have on my desk a letter from a wretched woman who had been visiting her husband in a federal prison. He is a doing a year and a day for an income tax "fraud." You may say that it serves the fellow right. But what do you say about Harry Truman's privilege of immunity from reporting or accounting for an income of $50,000 a year ostensibly for expenses incidental to do his office? We know that these expenses are thoroughly provided for in other funds. We know that the Trumans are typical non-spending, mid-western hicks. They wouldn't know how to throw a party even if they were of a mind to take the rubber off the roll. These facts we do know. But do the people also know that the same law that put over this graft also provided $1,375,140 for the expenses of the White House office, and for "travel and official entertainment expenses to be accounted for solely on his certificate?" Do they know that he got a $25,000 raise in pay and that he gets another "expense allowance" of $40,000?

"Certificate" means his mere statement, without oath. You are subject to the penalties for perjury.

Complicated, isn't it? You wouldn't suspect that they planned it that way to confuse us, would you?

This woman writes that her husband was denied bail during his appeal and was sent away for a year and a day without an hour to put his business affairs in order. He has been in prison several months already. He probably will have served his entire minimum sentence and be eligible for parole before his wife can manage to get together typewritten records of the testimony and other data needed for the appeal.

That can happen to anyone by means of clever, vindictive political enforcement of the Internal Revenue Act. Remember that one of the great eastern smear-bunds at a rally a few years ago was admonished to invoke the penal provisions of the income tax laws to "get" isolationists.

Meanwhile, as this woman bitterly points out, the traitor Judy Coplon, whose treachery was frankly acknowledged by the Court of Appeal, and Alger Hiss, whose treason was constructively implied in his conviction for perjury, go free on bail. This income-tax prisoner can never be repaid the months he will have spent in prison nor fully compensated for his mental anguish and his wife's even though he should be vindicated on appeal and Congress should pass an appropriation of money to idemnify him. The duty of a citizen to pay taxes has more and more been turned into a menace to his liberty and honor. Not one in a thousand can understand the tangled language. Professional experts make mistakes, and honest errors are crimes.

President Truman is said to be a truly representative common man, the veritable George Spelvin, American, come to glory in the White House. I believe he is. But the trouble is that the common man, George Spelvin, American, is just typical, not ideal. A president should be an ideal American. Spelvin probably would yield to a sordid temptation to get rich in the presidency by special privilege. A president should be above that.

Beef Patties Cut Meat Costs

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

To cut the cost of meat in your menu, double your interest in new recipes that extend meat and use less expensive cuts. These three will help. They use round steak and lamb shanks.

Broiled Dinner Beef Patties
(Serves 3 to 4)

One pound ground round steak, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup chopped onion, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup butter or fortified margarine.

Combine ground steak, salt and onion thoroughly. Shape into patties 1½ inches thick. Place on aluminum foil on broiler pan or rub the pan with fat and omit foil. Place the pan with the surface of the meat about 3 inches from a hot broiler flame. Broil 10 minutes or until the surface of the patties is well browned. Turn and broil 10 minutes more. Heat together the Worcestershire sauce and butter. Serze the sizzling hot patties on hot plates and pour the melted butter over the patties. Serve at once.

Deviled Dinner Beef Patties

Follow the above recipe but add to the beef 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon horseradish and 1 finely mashed clove of garlic. When patties are broiled, add ¼ cup catsup to the butter and Worcestershire sauce and pour over the hot patties.

Braised Lamb Shanks
(Serves 4)

Four lamb shanks (about 2 pounds), 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ cup fat, 2 cups water, 1 cup diced carrots, 1 cup diced potatoes, ½ cup diced celery, ½ cup diced onion, ½ teaspoon thyme (optional).

Season shanks. Brown in hot fat in heavy skillet. Add 2 cups water. Cover and cook slowly or bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 1½ hours. Add diced vegetables and thyme during last 30 minutes. Add more water if necessary. Cook until tender.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, ready-to-eat cereal, soft cooked eggs, enriched toast, butter or fortified margarine, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Toasted English muffins with melted cheese and tomato sauce, apple and cabbage salad, canned fruit, oatmeal cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Braised lamb shanks, mashed potatoes, diced buttered turnips with chopped parsley, enriched bread, butter or fortified margarine, celery, raisin and cranberry pie, coffee, milk.

¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1 egg
6 tablespoons milk

Susan—How did the Smith wedding go?

Mother—Fine, until the preacher asked the bride if she'd obey her husband.

Susan—What happened then?

Mother—She replied: "Do you think I'm crazy?" and the groom, who was in a daze, replied, "I do."

Ruth—I can't learn to love you.

Hal—But I've saved ten thousand dollars.

Ruth—Give me one more lesson.

A farm is a hunk of land on which, if you get up early enough mornings and work late enough nights, you'll make a fortune—if you strike oil.

Green told his friend that he had made up his mind to speak to his wife about using a little more economy in the household. Next day, however, Green looked pretty glum. "Was your lecture effective?" his friend asked. "You bet. It seems I'm going to give up beer and cigars."

Criticism is one of the few things people would rather give than take.

A wealthy man, lying on his death bed, called his chauffeur who had been in his service for years and said:

Man—Sykes, I'm going on a long and very rugged journey, worse than you ever drove me.

Chauffeur—Well, sir, there's one comfort. It's all down hill.

For every woman who makes a fool out of some man . . . there's another who makes a man out of some fool.

Helen—There's a time and place for everything.

Paul—I got the time, have you got the place?

Old Lady (to Porter)—Which platform for the Boston train?

Old Lady—Don't be impertinent.

George Washington knew why we needed a Stock Exchange

Under a buttonwood tree... in 1792, the third year of George Washington's first term as President... was the beginning of what is now the New York Stock Exchange.

To pay for the Revolutionary War, "stocks" had to be sold by the Government.

But people were naturally unwilling to invest in securities unless they could be easily resold. A market place was needed.

So a few businessmen who traded in securities decided to meet every day under the branches of an old buttonwood tree—only a few blocks from where the New York Stock Exchange now stands.

Today, the New York Stock Exchange is basically the same in purpose as in the days when George Washington knew it. It is a place where the securities of our largest and best-known businesses are bought and sold at auction.

What many people do not know is that the Stock Exchange does not buy or sell securities, or in any way set the prices. The Exchange's function is to provide a national market place. Handling investors' orders for a few shares, or hundreds, is the day-to-day business of its members and member firms.

Information on America's leading businesses, their financial picture, their earnings and dividend records can be had from member firms of the New York Stock Exchange. Their offices are located in 388 cities. Their facts and experience are yours without obligation.

Investor Forum

by Harry C. France

The stock market seems to be a happy hunting ground. Speculators thrive on bull markets and, thanks to the growing distrust of the integrity of the dollar, they are having their innings.

There are scores of different classes of capitalists who are keenly interested in stock price gyrations. Today I wish to address myself to those thousands of investors who have substantial equity profits and whose financial houses are not in order.

The market averages are at a 20-year high. This means that most stockholders have profits and some capital gains are handsome. Now it is usually true that many buying and selling problems could be easily solved if these problems were considered in the light of the goals to be achieved.

For example, a person with a $10,000 mortgage on his home and a cashable $10,000 stock market profit shouldn't be allowed any rest until he has made plans to have the gains cancel out the debt. And this principle goes for thousands of people.

Then, there are great numbers of persons carrying too little insurance. Anyone who, in these days of high stock prices, has shares worth 10 times as much as his insurance estate, should do something about it immediately. I refer to those individuals who have perhaps $2,000 worth of life insurance and $20,000 worth of stocks.

Granted, today our dollars are inflated. But America will not always have inflation. Reading these lines will be many men 35 to 40 years of age whose insurance programs, based on their other assets, are pathetic.

And, with the way the dollar is going, the last thing they would think about at the present time is to take $1,000 of lush stock market profits and throw them into a $25,000-$35,000 endownment insurance policy. Yet that is precisely what should be done.

A $1,000 easy-come stock market profit may be too lightly considered in 1951 but if it is used in setting up a 1951-1976 $25,000 insurance program, it can become the bulwark of a person's economic life. Lush money, flowing into sound channels, can give poise and direction to those given to waste and extravagance.

It would be a wonderful thing for America in 1951 if a billion dollars of capital stock market gains could be siphoned off into insurance policies. That would mean that 1,000,000 persons each could take $1,000 and set up something sound on a long term base.

Is the potential there to do this? Why, there are billions upon billions of dollars of capital gains available for this. The shares of a dozen leading corporations have gone up and up. Gains of 200, 300, 400% in recent years are common. And the tragedy of this situation may be that in the future these large potential gains may have blinded their possessors against the need of long term anti-deflation protection.

Saving is one of America's toughest jobs today. Living expenses are high, taxes are incentive-killing, cradle-to-the-grave social security takes away the fears of economic insecurity. With these things surrounding us, it is easy to get careless about thrift.

But saving is still mighty important. So I say earnestly that all people with assets priced higher than they were when they were bought should evaluate these assets carefully. Profits can be savings. It just takes courage to cash them in. And stock market profits can be very illusive.

When they are realized they can be used to annihilate debt, to establish non-fluctuating long-term values, to set up plans that only ready cash can accomplish. Let the 1951 happy hunting ground stock market do wonders for thousands of people.

Quick Verdict of the New-Car Season: "Smart Buy's Buick"

To modernize the triumphant phrase of an old campaigner—"They came. They saw. It conked 'em!"

In other words, folks are calling this smart-stepping '51 Buick terrific.

Wherever you look, you find reasons for this fervor.

And the ROADMASTER literally tops all previous standards of comfort and luxury. You sink hip-deep in double-thick, pillow-soft Foamtex cushions—feast your eyes on new fabrics that have the look and texture of custom excellence.

George Washington knew why we needed a Stock Exchange

Under a buttonwood tree... in 1792, the third year of George Washington's first term as President... was the beginning of what is now the New York Stock Exchange.

To pay for the Revolutionary War, "stocks" had to be sold by the Government.

But people were naturally unwilling to invest in securities unless they could be easily resold. A market place was needed.

So a few businessmen who traded in securities decided to meet every day under the branches of an old buttonwood tree—only a few blocks from where the New York Stock Exchange now stands.

Today, the New York Stock Exchange is basically the same in purpose as in the days when George Washington knew it. It is a place where the securities of our largest and best-known businesses are bought and sold at auction.

What many people do not know is that the Stock Exchange does not buy or sell securities, or in any way set the prices. The Exchange's function is to provide a national market place. Handling investors' orders for a few shares, or hundreds, is the day-to-day business of its members and member firms.

Information on America's leading businesses, their financial picture, their earnings and dividend records can be had from member firms of the New York Stock Exchange. Their offices are located in 388 cities. Their facts and experience are yours without obligation.

Investor Forum

by Harry C. France

The stock market seems to be a happy hunting ground. Speculators thrive on bull markets and, thanks to the growing distrust of the integrity of the dollar, they are having their innings.

There are scores of different classes of capitalists who are keenly interested in stock price gyrations. Today I wish to address myself to those thousands of investors who have substantial equity profits and whose financial houses are not in order.

The market averages are at a 20-year high. This means that most stockholders have profits and some capital gains are handsome. Now it is usually true that many buying and selling problems could be easily solved if these problems were considered in the light of the goals to be achieved.

For example, a person with a $10,000 mortgage on his home and a cashable $10,000 stock market profit shouldn't be allowed any rest until he has made plans to have the gains cancel out the debt. And this principle goes for thousands of people.

Then, there are great numbers of persons carrying too little insurance. Anyone who, in these days of high stock prices, has shares worth 10 times as much as his insurance estate, should do something about it immediately. I refer to those individuals who have perhaps $2,000 worth of life insurance and $20,000 worth of stocks.

Granted, today our dollars are inflated. But America will not always have inflation. Reading these lines will be many men 35 to 40 years of age whose insurance programs, based on their other assets, are pathetic.

And, with the way the dollar is going, the last thing they would think about at the present time is to take $1,000 of lush stock market profits and throw them into a $25,000-$35,000 endownment insurance policy. Yet that is precisely what should be done.

A $1,000 easy-come stock market profit may be too lightly considered in 1951 but if it is used in setting up a 1951-1976 $25,000 insurance program, it can become the bulwark of a person's economic life. Lush money, flowing into sound channels, can give poise and direction to those given to waste and extravagance.

It would be a wonderful thing for America in 1951 if a billion dollars of capital stock market gains could be siphoned off into insurance policies. That would mean that 1,000,000 persons each could take $1,000 and set up something sound on a long term base.

Is the potential there to do this? Why, there are billions upon billions of dollars of capital gains available for this. The shares of a dozen leading corporations have gone up and up. Gains of 200, 300, 400% in recent years are common. And the tragedy of this situation may be that in the future these large potential gains may have blinded their possessors against the need of long term anti-deflation protection.

Saving is one of America's toughest jobs today. Living expenses are high, taxes are incentive-killing, cradle-to-the-grave social security takes away the fears of economic insecurity. With these things surrounding us, it is easy to get careless about thrift.

But saving is still mighty important. So I say earnestly that all people with assets priced higher than they were when they were bought should evaluate these assets carefully. Profits can be savings. It just takes courage to cash them in. And stock market profits can be very illusive.

When they are realized they can be used to annihilate debt, to establish non-fluctuating long-term values, to set up plans that only ready cash can accomplish. Let the 1951 happy hunting ground stock market do wonders for thousands of people.

Junior Marrieds Are Given Lecture On Children's Speech

Miss Rose Abernathy, director of speech at New Paltz State Teachers College, addressed the Junior Married Women's Club at the Y.W.C.A. Thursday evening. Speaking to her audience as one teacher to another, she explained the theory that children primarily imitate their parents' speech habits, and that a child's own speech is developed through imitation.

The speaking voice, she said, is a clue to personality, and mothers can aid in the development of good speech by setting a good example with their own voices. They should also, Miss Abernathy told the group, treat speech as an expression of age, rather than comparing children with adults, or other older children. Parents should praise what is good, and let their children express themselves.

Miss Abernathy also described the stages of speech development in a child. The various stages include crying, babbling, repeating themselves, repeating others, and verbal utterances, until speech is finally attained.

"As we have high social standards," Miss Abernathy concluded, "let us have high speech standards."

During the business meeting Mrs. Fred Port, chairman of the February 1 card party, announced that plans for the affair have been completed. Tickets may be purchased from any club member, and reservations should be made by January 29. Reservations may be made by calling 4385-W, or 1921.

Mrs. L. A. Van Bramer, service chairman, announced that she had been assisting the local Cancer Society, helping them to schedule programs for presentation to clubs and groups throughout the area. Mrs. Van Bramer, assisted by other Junior Married Women, in the near future will distribute some of the society's literature and posters to local factories.

It has been announced that a covered dish supper and square dance are being planned for Husbands' Night, February 15, by Mrs. Christopher Morris and her entertainment committee.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Peter Mathews, Mrs. Myron Hopper, and Mrs. George Rifenbery.

20th Century Has Musical Program

Mrs. William Eltinge presented a musical program to members of the 20th Century Club, when the group met Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Alice Scerdefield, 217 Clinton avenue.

In her introductory remarks the speaker mentioned that in his day Mozart was termed "the world's greatest pianist." He began playing at the age of three, and died when he was only 35 years old. As examples of his masterpieces, Mrs. Eltinge then played two movements from his "Seventh Sonata."

Mrs. Eltinge also spoke of Franz Schubert, 1797-1828, who followed the Mozart period. He is classified, she said, as the most original and productive artist of the piano, and was imitated by Schumann and Mendelssohn. His "Impromtu in B Flat" was also played by Mrs. Eltinge.

Next on the program was Mrs. Byron Chatham, a guest of the club, who sang the following group of songs: "Dedication," by Robert Franz; "Absent," by John Metcalf; and "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," by Arthur Tate.

Following the musical program the group held a discussion on world affairs.

Congregation Plans Farewell Party

A farewell party will be held for the Rev. and Mrs. Ervin W. Gietz by members of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church Thursday at 8 p. m. in the church school auditorium. A program has been prepared by the entertainment committee headed by Herman LaTour, and Mrs. John Kuehn, Sr., and refreshments will be served by members of the Ladies' Aid Society. The church council extends an invitation to all church members.

The Rev. Mr. Gietz has been called to St. James Evangelical Lutheran Church, Brooklyn, and will preach his farewell sermon in St. Paul's Church this Sunday.

Personal Notes

Mrs. John Schussler, chairman of the Ulster County 100,000 Club and Mrs. John B. Sterley; will attend the Women's National Republican Club luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, Saturday.

Sunday Bride

(Pennington Photo)

Mrs. Raymond Hoetger, the former Carolyn Rose Pieczynske, who was wed Sunday, Jan. 21, in Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church, this city.

Hoetger-Pieczynske Nuptials Are Held In Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church

Miss Carolyn Rose Pieczynske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Pieczynske of 52 Grant street, was married to Raymond Walter Hoetger, son of Mrs. Walter Hoetger and the late Mr. Hoetger of 10 Valley street Sunday, Jan. 21. The 3 o'clock ceremony was performed in Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church by the Rev. Ernest L. Witte, pastor of that parish.

Paul Barnum was organist, and Mrs. Frank C. Sass soloist. Mrs. Sass sang "At Dawning," "O Promise Me," and "Because." The altar of the church was decorated with vases of white stock.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was dressed in a white slipper satin bridal gown, cut with a high collar, long sleeves, and lace panels which fell from the shoulder to the hem, and from the shoulder to the tip of the train. She wore a lace headpiece and a fingertip veil, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and sweetpeas.

Miss Frances Pieczynske of 52 Grant street, sister of the bride was matron of honor. Her gown was of dusty pink slipper satin, overlaid with a skirt of dusty pink net. She wore matching net mitts and a headpiece, and carried a shower bouquet of yellow carnations.

The bride's other attendants were Miss Renee DuBois of 56 Murray street, Miss Shirley Carey of 63 Newkirk avenue, Mrs. Helen Stoutenburg of 167 Elmendorf street, and Miss Wanda Ahrens of Quarryville, all cousins of the bride. Each attendant was dressed in a nile green slipper satin gown with net overlay skirts, and a nile green net headpiece and mitts. They carried bouquets of light and dark pink carnations.

William Lucas of South Sterling street was best man. Ushers were Gilbert Gray of 67 Ann street, cousin of the bride, Grant Stoutenburg of 167 Elmendorf street, cousin of the bride, Lawrence D. Sheenan of Middletown, and Raymond McClusky of Mansion street, Poughkeepsie, cousin of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the church hall.

On their wedding trip the couple will visit New York. For traveling the bride wore a cocoa lace dress with brown accessories, and a maroon coat with a mouton collar. The couple will make their home at 10 Valley street.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School, and is employed at the Barclay Knitwear Co., Cornell street.

Mr. Hoetger attended the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran School, and was graduated from Kingston High School. During World War 2 he served for 40 months in the paratroopers with the 82nd and 11th Airborne Divisions. He was also overseas for 21 months.

Howard Lindsay Endorses Start Of Theatre Group

The Coach House Players and their director, Houston Richards, had cause to puff out their chests this week with pride. Richards, who is known quite as well along the "Great White Way" as he is in the main streets of his home town, Woodstock, wrote a letter, recently, to his very old, and very good friend, Howard Lindsay. The co-author and star of the Broadway immortal, "Life With Father," returned with the sort of testimonial most little theatre groups dream of, but never see.

The following is Mr. Lindsay's text:

"The core of the American Theatre is that small group which operates commercially in New York city, and the limited audience which can afford the high prices charged for its professional entertainment. But the nourishing fruit of this form of our culture is comprised of the non-professional theatre throughout our entire country.

"When man first began to observe himself and his fellow human beings, it was discovered that the telling of a story by the impersonation of characters was a rewarding experience both for those who participated in the telling and those who heard the story told. It is an old and persistent art form that continues to give delight. The more closely it becomes a community experience, the more richly are those on both sides of the footlights rewarded.

"There are few communities in America that have not found that out. And so may I send my congratulations and my heartiest best wishes to the Coach House Players. Long may they flourish!"

HOWARD LINDSAY

Colonel McNamee Will Address Club

The Men's Club of the First Dutch Reformed Church will hold its 26th annual dinner Thursday, February 22.

The speaker of the evening will be Col. Frank A. McNamee, of Albany.

Lomontville Unit Elects Officers

A FAMILY PROBLEM

A curious in-law problem is described: "I've called my mother-in-law 'Mom' for several months. I know it has irked my sister-in-law that I call her mother what the family does. But it expresses my affection for her and satified my own wish not to call anyone but my own parent 'Mother.' Over the holidays when the family was all together my sister-in-law really spoke her mind to me in private. She feels that I've had no right to call her mother by their name. I'd like your opinion."

Although I have never heard of a mother-in-law who was not especially happy to have her daughter-in-law show her this affection, I think this obvious case of jealousy could become a very real problem. If I were you I would ask my husband to discuss it with his mother and then do whatever they together decide. Perhaps there is another name that she would like you to call her. If so you will, of course, follow her advice.

The Mourning Period

Dear Mrs. Post: How long is a period of mourning for a father? My sister wishes to have a large wedding in June of this year and as my father passed on just before the Christmas holidays, Mother thinks it's too soon for such display. My sister, the bride-to-be, says that it would be all right particularly since none of us are wearing mourning for him anyway. Does this alter Mother's opinion?

Answer: Yes I think that it very definitely does. In fact, under the circumstances, typical wedding preparations six months hence will be entirely proper. (This does not mean a conspicuously elaborate display that would receive unusual press notices.)

Drinking Toast

Dear Mrs. Post: When two people drink a toast to no one in particular, may both properly drink? For example, one will often lift the glass and say, "To happiness," or "To good luck."

Answer: Drinking the toast merely means that one person raises his glass in the direction of the other person and then the other raising his, they both take a sip.

Tompkins to Head Clayton's Band

Ellenville, Jan. 24 — Robert Tompkins, it has been announced, was elected to succeed Thomas Grant as president of Clayton's Military Band at the organization's annual meeting Monday in the band rooms at St. John's parish house.

Others named to office at the meeting, which 42 members attended, were Joseph Rauner, vice president; Julius Haener, secretary; Kenneth Mance, treasurer; Robert Wolf, manager; Robert de Puy, assistant manager; Harry Smith, leader; John Terwilliger, first assistant leader; William Terwilliger, second assistant leader; Frank Potter, publicity manager; Arthur Brown, trustee; Robert Benson, Robert Wolf, and Harry Smith, librarians.

At the same meeting the band decided to make John Johnson, Richard Davidson, and Carl Carlsen members.

Plans for summer concerts, the purchase of a new E flat alto horn, and an order to purchase more than $150 of new music were other highlights of the meeting.

Benefit Dance Planned

Friday evening a benefit dance will be held at White Eagle hall, Delaware avenue, under the auspices of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and Mary Society, Inc., of the Immaculate Conception Church.

Frank Wojnarowski and his well-known 10-piece radio and recording orchestra will furnish the music. Mr. Wojnarowski and his orchestra hail from Bridgeport, Conn., and are known throughout the east for their Polish folk music, polkas and modern dance tunes.

The public is invited to attend.

A large basket, decorated to represent a bassinet by John Goetz, shipping clerk, and filled to overflowing, was brought into the cafeteria by Mrs. Dorothy Sickler, and Mrs. Helen MacDougal. Junior Marrieds Are Given Lecture On Children's Speech

Miss Rose Abernathy, director of speech at New Paltz State Teachers College, addressed the Junior Married Women's Club at the Y.W.C.A. Thursday evening. Speaking to her audience as one teacher to another, she explained the theory that children primarily imitate their parents' speech habits, and that a child's own speech is developed through imitation.

The speaking voice, she said, is a clue to personality, and mothers can aid in the development of good speech by setting a good example with their own voices. They should also, Miss Abernathy told the group, treat speech as an expression of age, rather than comparing children with adults, or other older children. Parents should praise what is good, and let their children express themselves.

Miss Abernathy also described the stages of speech development in a child. The various stages include crying, babbling, repeating themselves, repeating others, and verbal utterances, until speech is finally attained.

"As we have high social standards," Miss Abernathy concluded, "let us have high speech standards."

During the business meeting Mrs. Fred Port, chairman of the February 1 card party, announced that plans for the affair have been completed. Tickets may be purchased from any club member, and reservations should be made by January 29. Reservations may be made by calling 4395-W, or 1911.

Mrs. L. A. Van Bramer, service chairman, announced that she had been assisting the local Cancer Society, helping them to schedule programs for presentation to clubs and groups throughout the area. Mrs. Van Bramer, assisted by other Junior Married Women, in the near future will distribute some of the society's literature and posters to local factories.

It has been announced that a covered dish supper and square dance are being planned for Husbands' Night, February 15, by Mrs. Christopher Morris and her entertainment committee.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Peter Mathews, Mrs. Myron Hopper, and Mrs. George Rifenbary.

20th Century Has Musical Program

Mrs. William Eltinge presented a musical program to members of the 20th Century Club, when the group met Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Alice Scardefield, 217 Clinton avenue.

In her introductory remarks the speaker mentioned that in his day Mozart was termed "the world's greatest pianist." He began playing at the age of three, and died when he was only 35 years old. As examples of his masterpieces, Mrs. Eltinge then played two movements from his "Seventh Sonata."

Mrs. Eltinge also spoke of Franz Schubert, 1797-1828, who followed the Mozart period. He is classified, she said, as the most original and productive artist of the piano, and was imitated by Schumann and Mendelssohn. His "Impromtu in B Flat" was also played by Mrs. Eltinge.

Next on the program was Mrs. Byron Chatham, a guest of the club, who sang the following group of songs: "Dedication," by Robert Franz; "Absent," by John Metcalf; and "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," by Arthur Tate.

Following the musical program the group held a discussion on world affairs.

The church council extends an invitation to all church members.

Howard Lindsay Endorses Start Of Theatre Group

The Coach House Players and their director, Houston Richards, had cause to puff out their chests this week with pride. Richards, who is known quite as well along the "Great White Way" as he is in the main streets of his home town, Woodstock, wrote a letter, recently, to his very old, and very good friend, Howard Lindsay. The co-author and star of the Broadway immortal, "Life With Father," returned with the sort of testimonial most little theatre groups dream of, but never see.

The following is Mr. Lindsay's text:

"The core of the American Theatre is that small group which operates commercially in New York city, and the limited audience which can afford the high prices charged for its professional entertainment. But the nourishing fruit of this form of our culture is comprised of the non-professional theatre throughout our entire country.

"When man first began to observe himself and his fellow human beings, it was discovered that the telling of a story by the impersonation of characters was a rewarding experience both for those who participated in the telling and those who heard the story told. It is an old and persistent art form that continues to give delight. The more closely it becomes a community experience, the more richly are those on both sides of the footlights rewarded.

"There are few communities in America that have not found that out. And so may I send my congratulations and my heartiest best wishes to the Coach House Players. Long may they flourish!"

Laura S. Heinlein Becomes the Bride Of Francis Kennedy

Woodstock, Jan. 24—Miss Laura Stokes Heinlein of Rockville Center and Woodstock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer G. Heinlein of Woodstock, become the bride of Francis R. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kennedy of Valley Stream, Sunday, Jan. 21, at 4 p. m. The double ring ceremony was performed in the Holy Name of Mary Church, Valley Stream, by the Rev. Peter Schoenenberger, of that parish.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph V. Heinlein, wore an ivory satin gown, en train, cut with long sleeves, and a full skirt. The gown's illusion bodice was trimmed with seed pearls, and she wore a matching ivory satin helmet trimmed with pearls and securing a fingertip illusion veil. The bride carried a prayer book marked with a white orchid, lilies of the valley, and satin streamers.

Miss Doris Miltz of Hawthorne, N. J., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Miltz was dressed in emerald green satin with a matching cap and mitts, and carried a cascade bouquet of pink camellias.

William J. Kennedy, Jr., of Brooklyn, brother of the groom, was best man. John W. Sheppard of Rockville Center, and William F. Pelham of New York were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 75 guests was held at the groom's parent's home. The couple will make their home in Upper Montclair, N. J.

Footlighters Are Asked to Participate In International Theatre Month in March

The Kingston Footlighters have been invited to participate in International Theatre Month, as sponsored by the United States National Commission for the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization and the American National Theatre and Academy, President Ernest Grafe of Bloomington announced today.

This plan for American theatre participation in support of the United Nations, and its objectives, is enthusiastically endorsed by the Footlighters, who will take part in the international demonstration that "the theatre serves international understanding."

The annual observance of International Theatre Month during March of each year includes the production of plays, pageants, and musical programs which will acquaint people with the ideas and the ideals of world-wide understanding which have brought U.N.E.S.C.O. into being.

Over 28 countries were represented at a meeting of the Third International Theatre Conference last June, when plans were formulated for this world-wide observance. The experiment has been named unique in the annals of the American stage, and this recognition of the theatre as a promoter of international understanding has been termed "an enlightened trend." Peace-loving peoples, it has been emphasized, now see the need for removing the intolerance and tensions which are causing such serious disagreement among nations. The central force in this movement, is, of course, the United Nations. As a member organization of the National Commission, A.N.T.A., the organized voice of American theatre, shares the responsibility for attaining this objective.

Participants in International Theatre Month will concentrate their spotlight, it has been reported, on themes which best suggest the search for security and peace underlying the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, as exemplified through the work of the United Nations, and, in particular, U.N.E.S.C.O.

This agency, was established to solve the problems involved in furthering respect for justice, the rule of law, and the fundamental rights of man. It chose specialized media for the promotion of its particular objectives, of which the theatre is one, with its unique sources for direct communication from both an educational, and cultural standpoint.

The Kingston Footlighters, emphasize that they feel priviledged to participate in such a far-reaching, world-wide endeavor, and are pledged to promote international understanding through A.N.T.A., and the National Commission for U.N.E.S.C.O.

bious" such a compromise could be worked out.

He told Moore and the other municipal officials he felt that C.D. manpower requirements could be met on a voluntary basis and that "we should not go into conscription."

The administration reportedly believes that conscription powers would spur volunteering.

Corning, who was the defeated Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor in 1946, was the most outspoken critic of the Dewey defense emergency plan at the meeting, Moore's first with municipal leaders.

It was a calm session that explored many points in the voluminous defense emergency bill, which some critics have tagged "dictatorial" and Dewey himself has called "repulsive."

The touchy question of how state-ordered local civil defense programs would be financed was not settled.

Moore told newsmen that there seemed to be general agreement that "if the federal government didn't do * * * its part, the state should step in" and provide some financial assistance.

He quoted Corning as saying that municipalities should bear "a reasonable share of the cost" and said other representatives agreed.

Corning remarked, however, that there was "a responsibility on the part of the state, in any event, to pay part of the costs."

Moore said the municipalities' initial job was to inventory their assets and liabilities and marshal forces.

"I don't believe," he added, "that in so doing they would be put to any great early cost. They could utilize present personnel and equipment.

"I do not anticipate that localities, in the first instance, would have to make any substantial capital expenditures."

Moore implied, however, that he was not completely precluding that possibility, explaining that the question of bomb shelter construction was not considered at the session.

"There's still a question," he added, "as to what can and what cannot be done with federal financial assistance."

Moore said the municipal spokesmen were satisfied generally with the defense emergency bill's pattern of setting up civil defense units on a county-wide basis, with city units optional.

Community Police Vital in Meeting Attacks of Enemy

The likelihood of enemy action against cities, towns and villages on the American mainland should be regarded as a prime factor in developing plans for community police service of the future, James R. Barrett, chief of the police bureau of the State Division of Safety, said Tuesday noon at a meeting of the Kingston Lions Club.

"The need for full community protective services is heightened in times of national emergency," he said. "During such periods, the police become an important part of the internal security forces of the nation, they assist in plant protection, they act to repress and detect special crime and also carry on regular peace time duties of protecting life and property.

"Normal retirement, losses of manpower attributable to death, injury and illness, and absences because of service with the armed forces all tend to weaken local police organizations and limit their functions."

Barrett said that the public can help assure preservation of community protective services by volunteering now to aid police in the performance of added wartime duties. He added that it is "highly important" for community leaders to interest themselves in providing adequate salaries for police personnel so that trained men will not be attracted to private employment to obtain a satisfactory level of compensation.

A REPORT ON FIVE YEARS THAT MADE TELEPHONE HISTORY

After five years of the biggest construction program in our history, the telephone system serving New York State is in good shape to meet whatever emergency needs may lie ahead.

These five years have been a constant challenge to the ingenuity and skill of the entire telephone organization. Never have so many people wanted—and obtained—so many telephones in so short a time.

But the 2,000,000 telephones we added hardly begin to describe the magnitude of the job—or its importance today to the state and the nation.

① $780,000,000 PROGRAM. The flood of demands for telephones—pent up during the war years—started rising soon after World War II ended, and pressure on switchboards and cables mounted. To meet this demand, we got under way with our big construction program. It made amazing progress in spite of materials shortages and rising costs of all kinds.

③ HOW THE SYSTEM GREW. In cities, towns and hamlets throughout the state telephone facilities were enlarged as fast as we could get new equipment and do the work. We put up 110 new buildings and made additions to 58 others; opened 155 new central offices; added more than 5 million miles of telephone lines.

② WAITING LISTS SHORTENED. The demand for telephones never slackened, and construction went on at a record pace. Steadily the number of people waiting for service was whittled down. People must still wait for service in some places, but we are working hard to get to them in the shortest possible time. We're using every bit of materials and equipment we can get for the purpose.

④ SERVICE GREATLY IMPROVED. Great strides have also been made in improving the service. More than 1,700,000 dial telephones have been installed; many local calling areas were enlarged; rural service was greatly expanded. Nearly 24,000 men and women have been added to the telephone force. They help provide service that is not only fast and clear, but courteous and friendly as well.

Our big construction program has been good news for the people who got the 2,000,000 telephones. It is also an assurance to those who are waiting for service, for we expect to go right ahead with this job, using every bit of equipment and materials available to us. There is satisfaction in this: Already the program has provided a system that is stronger and more flexible than ever before — a fact that is vitally important in these critical times.

Laura S. Heinlein Becomes the Bride Of Francis Kennedy

Woodstock, Jan. 24—Miss Laura Stokes Heinlein of Rockville Center and Woodstock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer G. Heinlein of Woodstock, become the bride of Francis R. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kennedy of Valley Stream, Sunday, Jan. 21, at 4 p. m. The double ring ceremony was performed in the Holy Name of Mary Church, Valley Stream, by the Rev. Peter Schoenenberger, of that parish.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph V. Heinlein, wore an ivory satin gown, en train, cut with long sleeves, and a full skirt. The gown's illusion bodice was trimmed with seed pearls, and she wore a matching ivory satin helmet trimmed with pearls and securing a fingertip illusion veil. The bride carried a prayer book marked with a white orchid, lilies of the valley, and satin streamers.

Miss Doris Miltz of Hawthorne, N. J., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Miltz was dressed in emerald green satin with a matching cap and mitts, and carried a cascade bouquet of pink camellias.

William J. Kennedy, Jr., of Brooklyn, brother of the groom, was best man. John W. Sheppard of Rockville Center, and William F. Pelham of New York were ushers.

Draft Ruling on 4Fs Would Hit Majors

Several Affected By Re-Classification

Professional and amateur athletes got implicit notice today from Defense Secretary George Marshall that 4F's probably will find themselves drafted in the present emergency if the necessity demands.

If inducted, Marshall said, the men could be used in non-combat duty, thus relieving more of the physically fit for the fighting front.

The question arose at a session of the House Armed Services Committee in Washington yesterday when it was recalled that many athletes who failed to pass Selective Service physical examinations were deferred in the last war.

A new bill proposing to draft 18-year-olds and establishing a universal military service and training system now is under discussion.

Although it was not specified, Pentagon officials later made it plain that if it was decided to draft the 4F's, not only athletes but men from all walks of life would be affected.

Officials of major league baseball and football immediately gave full support to the proposal, many of them pointing out that the athletes themselves would prefer such service.

Actually, unless the international situation requires drastic changes in mobilization requirements, such sports as major league baseball and football will feel little effect under present regulations.

No Immediate Danger

The present draft applies only to men from 19 through 25 years of age, and exempts veterans of World War II and married men with dependants. Rosters of most of the professional clubs are stocked with players who saw service in the last war, are 26 or over, or are married.

At the Pentagon it was said officials have been talking about the 4F's for several weeks. The Selective Service boards are nearing the bottom of the barrel filling quotas with those meeting present physical requirements.

Erv Palica, 23, Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher who failed to pass his physical last November, passed a new examination yesterday. He suffered high blood pressure, but now is expected to be inducted within three weeks.

Others who might be called for limited service include such baseball players as Ralph Branca, Brooklyn pitcher, outfielder Joe Adcock and pitcher Herm Wehmeier of the Cincinnati Reds; Mickey McDermott, Boston Red Sox pitcher; Cass Michaels, Washington Senators second sacker; Mickey Mantle, rookie shortstop going south with the New York Yankees; Eddie Kazak, St. Louis Cardinals third baseman; and pitcher Jim Pearce of Washington.

Pitcher Howie Fox and first baseman Tex Kluszewski of the Reds were classified 4F, but Fox is 29 and Kluszewski is 26 years old.

Two other athletes were among those receiving notices yesterday to report for physicals. Weldon Humble, guard of the Cleveland Browns — National Football League champions—was called for his physical Feb. 5. He is a reserve first lieutenant with the Marines. Pete Babando, 25, wingman of the Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League, will report for examination Friday.

• Bagatelles:

Three top professional sports names in town over the week-end to take up the slack created by the vacancy in the DUSO League basketball schedule . . . Junie McMahon . . . Tarzan Hewitt . . . Lord Carlton . . . big names in their chosen professions.

McMahon is one of the great bowlers of our time. Tarzan Hewitt, most spectacular of wrestling TV's bad men and Lord Leslie Carlton, the monocled Englishman, current rages in the grunt and groan industry.

Hewitt, glamor boy of TV audiences, generally needs a couple of cops to restore order after he gets through with an opponent. We know Promoter Bill Johnston has already arranged for such "protection" with Chief of Police Ray Van Buren for Saturday's wrestling show at the municipal auditorium.

New York's National Motorboat Show hit the jackpot. All the exhibitors did a land-office business, which is a mighty peculiar kind of business for boat people to do.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Unmindful of the draft, national emergency and the global picture in general, the Poughkeepsie Twilight League has already called its reorganization meeting for 1951. Somehow or other, these small city and town wheels manage to survive. The City Baseball League here should be calling a session in the near future. But we can't help wondering what will happen to George Beaumont Harmon's elaborately planned Catskill Mountain League. Just another wonder, will anything be done about the new "deadline"—Saturday, Jan. 26, for Kingston's reply to the latest offer from the Canadian-American League. The greatest .282 hitter in all of baseball history must be Tommy Henrich of the Yankees. Through a 13-year career "Old Reliable" must have delivered as many key hits as anybody in the big time. Mel Allen coined a classic nickname when he dubbed Henrich "Old Reliable."

Lou Kantrowitz, vacationing in Miami Beach, postcards, that he is still seeking the elusive "70" on the lush Florida fairways. Which brings to mind the fact that February's millionaires will soon be heading for Florida en masse. What more beautiful life can there be than spending the month of February chasing little white pellets around Florida golf courses. Who knows, it may happen to you, sometime within the next century.

• An Old Fireballer Passes On:

A schoolboy baseball hero passed on to his final reward in East Kingston a few days ago . . . Charles "Chot" Tierney, a tall, slim, overpowering right hander who was a pitching star for the once renowned East Kingston Studebakers in the mid-1920's. "Chot" used to pitch with a full, swooping overhand motion and his blazing fast ball delighted crowds at the old home town ball park when we were just beginning to think about long pants.

The Studebakers, a powerful, swaggering crew, were tough customers on their home lot. The club was sponsored by Dave Schenck and managed by the late Bill McNally, an enthusiastic booking manager in the tradition of Harold "Bo" Jones and John McCardle. McNally's famous slogan, in the days of unreliable transportation methods, used to be: "We'll be a little late but we'll be on time. . . ." The late Father Thomas P. Larkin was a sort of spiritual director and chief rooter for the club.

The Studebaker roster was a colorful one, some of whom preceded Tierney into the Valhalla. We recall John Hurson, Ed "Bee" Pierce, the late Jack Watzka, with the inevitable paint ring around the end of his bat; Big Jim Volker, who later earned fame in local baseball circles; Matty Redden. Then others like Steve Fay, Cornelius Watzka, Ed Luby, Dick Heneberry, Louis "Coke" Tiano. Frank "Butch" Watzka was the umpire. In later years the Studebakers took on two powerful Negro sluggers with the unique monickers of "Sheep" and "Big Wine." Both could powder the ball a country mile. There were others, too, but their names are vague and distant in our mind at the moment.

"Chot" Tierney is dead but as long as kids play ball and old timers gather to reminisce about old times, his name will always be remembered in East Kingston's baseball lore.

Alabama's new governor—Gordon Persons—wants Auburn's football coach—Earl Brown—fired because Auburn didn't win a game last fall. It's nice to see our political leaders taking an interest in the important things in life.

Carlton's Foe On Saturday

BOBBY BECKER

Handsome Bobby Becker, one of the few great matmen born and raised in New York, will be Lord Leslie Carlton's opponent in the feature pro wrestling card Saturday night at the municipal auditorium.

Becker, who later moved to Hollywood, is the only American grappler to defeat the monocled Britisher during his current tour of the United States.

The New Yorker is something of a freak in wrestling, since he never went to college or played football or basketball. As a boy he stayed around the Lenox A.C. and Cooper A.C. where he did some amateur boxing and wrestling.

He started his career as an amateur at the age of 15 and after winning about 20 matches in a row, he took a crack at boxing but his family nixed a ring career and he returned to his first love—wrestling.

Becker made his professional debut at the age of 21 as a light heavyweight at the Ridgewood Grove and then began to tour the United States and Canada, engaging in about 700 bouts and winning 600 or more.

Beat Carlton

His most famous victim, of course, was the self same Lord Carlton whom he meets Saturday. Other victims were Bobby Bruns, Angelo Leone, Maurice La Chappelle, Herbie Freeman and former world's champion, Ed Don George. He paid a short visit to Mexico City where he defeated the famed Ignacio Martinez.

Carlton, the English nobleman, was cut from a different cloth. A graduate of Oxford, he served as captain in the English Intelligence Corps during the war, being stationed in Africa, India and the British East Indies.

It was while serving in the British Army that he became interested in wrestling and won the British heavyweight title. Later, in India, he wrestled the Indian champion, Ramu, and defeated him for the British Empire crown.

A few of Lord Carlton's victims have been Primo Carnera, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, Don Eagle, Baron Leone, Abe Coleman and Argentine Rocca.

Tarzan Hewitt, wrestling's most famous Bad Man, is paired against slick Chic Garibaldi in the semi-final event.

Ticket orders may be made through the Tommy Maines Sport Shop on Broadway.

Doyle and Graybauer Spark Late Rally

Maybe it was a sign of things to come, that Potter Brothers' 63-60 thriller over Harry's Angels in last night's Y Basketball feature.

This was a regular second round contest but these two clubs have a bit of unfinished business ahead of them—the first round triple tie playoff on Saturday, Feb. 3.

Potters exploded with a 21-point fourth quarter to wrap up last night's skirmish, just when the Angels seemed to be gliding merrily along.

The Angels led 19-12 at the quarter, 34-25 at halftime and were in front, 51-41, when the Potters made their move.

Cliff Schoonmaker and Percy Greene hit with a couple of outside shots and Jack Doyle, a 21-point performer, accounted for three with a deuce and layup.

Potters Spurt

With a 55-55 deadlock at the five-minute mark, George Hughes converted a foul and, from a stiff zone defense, Charlie Graybauer intercepted twice in short order to dribble half the length of the court for a pair of vital baskets. A few seconds later, Percy Greene intercepted and passed to Graybauer for a driving layup, his third deuce within 75 seconds. That was the ball game. A free throw by Doyle and Ward Dunham's field and foul were strictly anti-climactic.

Doyle emerged as individual scoring leader with 21 markers. Andy Juhl led the Angels with 18.

Sixth Ward Wins

Paul Scott and Junie Harris sparked Sixth Ward's steady flow of power (quarter scores 17-16-16-15) with 24 and 21 respectively in the 64-53 upending of Chez Emile.

The Wardmen led 33-23 at halftime and then eked out a 31-30 marginin the last two periods.

Scott hit for most of his points from the bucket on jump and two-handed snap shots. Junie Harris, who played in the "B" league last fall, proved that he has come a long way in a short time.

"Champ" Holstein led Chez Emile with 17 points, although hurried on many shots. Clark Mains and Dan McGrane each accounted for 10 points.

Lifetime Pact For Neyland

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 24 (AP)—Gen. Bob Neyland received a lifetime contract to continue as head football coach at Tennessee.

The extension of Neyland's contract followed one of his most successful seasons. His 1950 team won ten games, lost one and upset Texas, 20-14, in the Cotton Bowl.

Tennessee was the No. 4 team in the country in the final Associated Press poll.

Neyland's salary has never been announced. Speculation has placed it at $16,500 plus $2,500 annually for "expenses." The new contract is expected to run his pay well above the $20,000 mark, making Neyland one of collegiate football's highest paid coaches.

The 58-year old Tennessee mentor is a disciple of the single-wing system.

Campanella Signs Dodger Contract

Brooklyn, Jan. 24 (AP)—Roy Campanella still shudders when he thinks of his close escape from serious eye injury when a hot water heater exploded in his face.

It happened two weeks ago at his home in Queens. A series of eye tests prove the Brooklyn catcher's sight is undamaged. In fact it's 20-15. But it was a close call.

"It wasn't the littlest thing that ever happened to me," said Ray. "It had me worried. Funny thing. It never damaged the basement at all. Just me. But it's all right now."

Campanella signed his new contract yesterday, calling for a salary in the $15,000-$20,000 neighborhood.

Minors Prepare For Jubilee

Columbus, O., Jan. 24 (AP)—A series of nine regional meetings starting this week-end may have a lot to do with how successful a season minor league baseball has in 1951—its golden anniversary year.

The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (minors) has invited representatives from all its 420 clubs to attend. The first meeting will be Friday and Saturday in Des Moines, Ia., for officials of midwest leagues and clubs.

Baseball men will talk over the organization's two biggest problems:

1. How to increase attendance at minor league games, and
2. How to get enough players while the country is calling more and more young men to the armed forces.

Draft Ruling on 4Fs Would Hit Majors

Several Affected By Re-Classification

Professional and amateur athletes got implicit notice today from Defense Secretary George Marshall that 4F's probably will find themselves drafted in the present emergency if the necessity demands.

If inducted, Marshall said, the men could be used in non-combat duty, thus relieving more of the physically fit for the fighting front.

The question arose at a session of the House Armed Services Committee in Washington yesterday when it was recalled that many athletes who failed to pass Selective Service physical examinations were deferred in the last war.

A new bill proposing to draft 18-year-olds and establishing a universal military service and training system now is under discussion.

Although it was not specified, Pentagon officials later made it plain that if it was decided to draft the 4F's, not only athletes but men from all walks of life would be affected.

Officials of major league baseball and football immediately gave full support to the proposal, many of them pointing out that the athletes themselves would prefer such service.

Actually, unless the international situation requires drastic changes in mobilization requirements, such sports as major league baseball and football will feel little effect under present regulations.

No Immediate Danger

The present draft applies only to men from 19 through 25 years of age, and exempts veterans of World War II and married men with dependants. Rosters of most of the professional clubs are stocked with players who saw service in the last war, are 26 or over, or are married.

At the Pentagon it was said officials have been talking about the 4F's for several weeks. The Selective Service boards are nearing the bottom of the barrel filling quotas with those meeting present physical requirements.

Erv Palica, 23, Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher who failed to pass his physical last November, passed a new examination yesterday. He suffered high blood pressure, but now is expected to be inducted within three weeks.

Others who might be called for limited service include such baseball players as Ralph Branca, Brooklyn pitcher, outfielder Joe Adcock and pitcher Herm Wehmeier of the Cincinnati Reds; Mickey McDermott, Boston Red Sox pitcher; Cass Michaels, Washington Senators second sacker; Mickey Mantle, rookie shortstop going south with the New York Yankees; Eddie Kazak, St. Louis Cardinals third baseman; and pitcher Jim Pearce of Washington.

Pitcher Howie Fox and first baseman Tex Kluszewski of the Reds were classified 4F, but Fox is 29 and Kluszewski is 26 years old.

Two other athletes were among those receiving notices yesterday to report for physicals. Weldon Humble, guard of the Cleveland Browns — National Football League champions—was called for his physical Feb. 5. He is a reserve first lieutenant with the Marines. Pete Babando, 25, wingman of the Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League, will report for examination Friday.

Doyle and Graybauer Spark Late Rally

Maybe it was a sign of things to come, that Potter Brothers' 63-60 thriller over Harry's Angels in last night's Y Basketball feature.

This was a regular second round contest but these two clubs have a bit of unfinished business ahead of them—the first round triple tie playoff on Saturday, Feb. 3.

Potters exploded with a 21-point fourth quarter to wrap up last night's skirmish, just when the Angels seemed to be gliding merrily along.

The Angels led 19-12 at the quarter, 34-25 at halftime and were in front, 51-41, when the Potters made their move.

Cliff Schoonmaker and Percy Greene hit with a couple of outside shots and Jack Doyle, a 21-point performer, accounted for three with a deuce and layup.

Potters Spurt

With a 55-55 deadlock at the five-minute mark, George Hughes converted a foul and, from a stiff zone defense, Charlie Graybauer intercepted twice in short order to dribble half the length of the court for a pair of vital baskets. A few seconds later, Percy Greene intercepted and passed to Graybauer for a driving layup, his third deuce within 75 seconds. That was the ball game. A free throw by Doyle and Ward Dunham's field and foul were strictly anti-climactic.

Doyle emerged as individual scoring leader with 21 markers. Andy Juhl led the Angels with 18.

Sixth Ward Wins

Paul Scott and Junie Harris sparked Sixth Ward's steady flow of power (quarter scores 17-16-16-15) with 24 and 21 respectively in the 64-53 upending of Chez Emile.

The Wardmen led 33-23 at halftime and then eked out a 31-30 marginin the last two periods.

Scott hit for most of his points from the bucket on jump and two-handed snap shots. Junie Harris, who played in the "B" league last fall, proved that he has come a long way in a short time.

"Champ" Holstein led Chez Emile with 17 points, although hurried on many shots. Clark Mains and Dan McGrane each accounted for 10 points.

KPBA Plans Lectures On Craft Handling

Series Starts On January 29

The Kingston Power Boat Association today announced plans for free courses on small boat handling, starting Monday, Jan. 29, at 8 p. m. at the club rooms, 334 Abeel street.

Commodore Roger J. Reardon said the course is open to all persons interested in boating. There will be no charge for the series of lectures covering various phases of boat handling.

The topics to be covered by the course include seamanship, equipment, rules of the road, safety at sea, the Marines compass, charts and piloting, aids to navigation and customs on shipboard.

Commodore Reardon said the course would be especially attractive to those who do not own boats at present but may have designs on the future.

Cites Pressure

The increasing pressure of small craft setup caused by the influx of thousands of new boating enthusiasts makes the course especially informative and vital, Reardon said. He pointed to the rapidly growing number of boat owners on the Rondout waterfront in the past few years.

The commodore stressed the point "let's not forget the sailorettes," as they are the mainstays around the pleasure yachts, especially when doing galley duty and acting as deck hands at the same time.

The officers and members of the KPBA have made great preparations for the course and invite the public to take advantage of this wealth of free instruction and information.

Any person interested in additional information may phone 1001 or 6129, or visit the Abeel street clubhouse on Sunday afternoon.

New Bathing Suits

Sydney (AP) — Australian migrants from Europe who appear on Sydney's beaches in French-style bathing costumes, or undress in the open are causing beach inspectors concern. Inspectors say, in most cases, the new Australians have protested that in the countries from which they came they had been accustomed to such habits.

Will Raise Battleship

Kure, Japan, Jan. 24 (AP)—The 42,000-ton battleship Haruna, once the pride of the Japanese Imperial Navy, is expected to be raised from the waters off Hiroshima late this month for scrap metal. Kyodo News Agency reported salvaging operations are being conducted by a Japanese company which expects to recover 25,000 tons of scrap iron valued at about $770,000. The Haruna was sunk by American planes late in World War 2. Early in the Pacific war, Capt. Colin Kelly crashed after returning from bombing the big warship. Kelly, one of America's first heroes in World War 2, ordered his crew to parachute to safety when his B-17 Flying Fortress was crippled by Japanese planes.

KPBA Plans Lectures On Craft Handling

Series Starts On January 29

The Kingston Power Boat Association today announced plans for free courses on small boat handling, starting Monday, Jan. 29, at 8 p. m. at the club rooms, 334 Abeel street.

Commodore Roger J. Reardon said the course is open to all persons interested in boating. There will be no charge for the series of lectures covering various phases of boat handling.

The topics to be covered by the course include seamanship, equipment, rules of the road, safety at sea, the Marines compass, charts and piloting, aids to navigation and customs on shipboard.

Commodore Reardon said the course would be especially attractive to those who do not own boats at present but may have designs on the future.

Cites Pressure

The increasing pressure of small craft setup caused by the influx of thousands of new boating enthusiasts makes the course especially informative and vital, Reardon said. He pointed to the rapidly growing number of boat owners on the Rondout waterfront in the past few years.

The commodore stressed the point "let's not forget the sailorettes," as they are the mainstays around the pleasure yachts, especially when doing galley duty and acting as deck hands at the same time.

The officers and members of the KPBA have made great preparations for the course and invite the public to take advantage of this wealth of free instruction and information.

Any person interested in additional information may phone 1001 or 6129, or visit the Abeel street clubhouse on Sunday afternoon.

New Bathing Suits

Sydney (AP) — Australian migrants from Europe who appear on Sydney's beaches in French-style bathing costumes, or undress in the open are causing beach inspectors concern. Inspectors say, in most cases, the new Australians have protested that in the countries from which they came they had been accustomed to such habits.

Will Raise Battleship

Kure, Japan, Jan. 24 (AP)—The 42,000-ton battleship Haruna, once the pride of the Japanese Imperial Navy, is expected to be raised from the waters off Hiroshima late this month for scrap metal. Kyodo News Agency reported salvaging operations are being conducted by a Japanese company which expects to recover 25,000 tons of scrap iron valued at about $770,000. The Haruna was sunk by American planes late in World War 2. Early in the Pacific war, Capt. Colin Kelly crashed after returning from bombing the big warship. Kelly, one of America's first heroes in World War 2, ordered his crew to parachute to safety when his B-17 Flying Fortress was crippled by Japanese planes.

One of the sad lessons you learn early in your bridge career is that you can't get rich doubling slams. In fact, you're more likely to wind up in the poorhouse than in the lap of luxury.

Experienced opponents will sometimes climb out on a limb with low bids. However, when they get up to the slam level, they have good reason to be up there. You can defeat their slams often enough, but you won't murder them. You can count yourself lucky to set them one trick.

For this reason, an expert doesn't bother to double a slam merely to collect a larger penalty (unless the slam has been bid as a sacrifice). He will double only to indicate that an unusual opening lead is needed to defeat the slam.

In today's hand, East broke this general rule because he thought that his two aces would surely set the

ADVERTISING IN THE FREEMAN PAYS

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Performances of individual issues dominated the stock market today with prices generally moving slightly lower.

Trading was limited with the pace slowing down as the price level fell.

Douglas Aircraft dropped more than 5 points after directors declared an extra of $1.25 and a regular quarterly of $1.25. A similar extra was paid last Feb. 21. Disappointment over the action was evident.

Gulf Oil added more than 3 points in response to directors' action yesterday in declaring a 100 per cent stock dividend. The opening of Gulf was somewhat delayed, and it started out on a block of 3,000 shares up 2¼ at 90½.

American Telephone developed early weakness that carried it down more than a point at times. The new rights were admitted to trading on a "when issued" basis during the morning and started on a block of 150,000 at 1 24/32. Subsequent trading was around that level.

The radio-television division held to small gains as did some of the oils and distillers. Elsewhere there was a generous sprinkling of gains and losses with the accent on the downside.

Higher were Southern Pacific, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co., Johns-Manville, American Tobacco, International Paper, American Cyanamid, International Telephone, Southern California Edison, Goodyear, International Harvester, National Distillers, Admiral Corp., and Motorola.

Charles Nessler Dies

Harrington Park, N. J., Jan. 24 (AP) — Charles Nessler, credited with being the originator of the permanent wave and the inventor of false eyelashes, is dead at 78. Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Nessler who died Monday of a heart attack at his home. A native of Germany, Nessler came to this country from England in 1915 and opened a beauty salon in New York city. Customers, including Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, paid $120 for a permanent wave. Dutch Cabinet Resigns

The Hague, Jan. 24 (AP) — The Dutch cabinet resigned today following attacks in Parliament on the government's defense and New Guinea policies. Earlier Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker quit the cabinet after members of his own Liberal Party attacked the government major policies. Stikker may be asked to head a new cabinet should Premier Willem Drees be unable to reform his Catholic-Labor coalition.

Students Blast U. S.

Rangoon (AP)—Burmese students are peeved at their government's "pro-American attitude" and said so at a public meeting. Student speakers accused Prime Minister Thakin Nu of selling out Burmese interests to "curry favor with Americans." They made it quite clear they want their country linked more firmly with the Soviet bloc whose "democratic educational system" they greatly "admired."

Musicians Honor John A. Cole at Annual Banquet

At its annual banquet Tuesday in The Barn, attended by more than 300, Protective Local 215, American Federation of Musicians, honored President John A. Cole for more than 29 years of service to the organization, crediting him with bolstering the union in many ways and establishing ideal relations between musicians and those who hire them.

Among those who paid tribute to Cole's untiring efforts and effective administration in several offices of the local was James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, who referred to him as a personal friend capably serving the cause of the union and its membership.

Petrillo expressed his sentiments in a telegram, and stressed his regret at not being able to attend the event. Other congratulatory messages were read from C. L. Bagley, Los Angeles, vice-president of the A. F. of M.; Harry J. Steeper, Newark, treasurer; Leo Cluesmann, Newark, secretary, and from members of the executive board—Herman D. Kesun, Portland, Ore., J. W. Parks, Dallas, Texas, and Stanley Ballard, Minneapolis; also Chauncey A. Weaver, Des Moins, Iowa, honorary member of the board.

Delegations were present from locals in Schenectady, Troy, Newburgh, Hudson, Saratoga Springs, Albany, Poughkeepsie, and Middletown. Nat M. Abramson, manager of WOR Entertainment Bureau, sent his congratulations, praising President Cole for his cooperation in dealing with bands he sends to Kingston for social functions in the municipal auditorium.

Judge Cashin Pays Tribute

County Judge John M. Cashin, introduced as the "magistrate who has drummed in every band in the area," lauded Cole as a union leader. Citing the progress of Local 215 under his guidance, the judge said, "You can't go wrong following John. He battles for what he knows is right and maintains unity among the ranks of the organization."

Judge Cashin referred to a situation that arose when he was corporation counsel of the city, pointing out that through the understanding and cooperation of John Cole it was eventually settled to the advantage of the musicians.

The judge, whose avocation is singing in amateur theatricals and taking a turn at the drums now and then, was presented with an honorary card in Local 215. As he handed the credentials to Judge Cashin, President Cole remarked, "From now on you play only in union bands."

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk referred to the pleasant relations he has enjoyed with President Cole and lauded the musicians union for its projects in city parks and hospitals that give pleasure to those who love music.

Charles Morris, secretary of Saratoga Local 506, and president of the New York State Conference of Musicians, stressed the attainments of the organization through the aid of John Cole, and emphasized the important parts he has played at national conventions.

Bringing greetings from the Poughkeepsie local, Fred Stitzel, business agent and secretary, formerly of Kingston, said, "This turnout is a great tribute to John A. Cole, and he justly deserves it."

Mrs. Cole was asked to stand for an introduction, and Dick McCarthy, master of ceremonies for the occasion, mentioned the important part she played in encouraging her husband to carry on with his work.

Plans Used Nationally

Attorney Irving M. Dooling, president of Albany Local 14, covered President Cole's activities in the union, emphasizing that many of the policies and plans he instituted for his own area have been adopted by the state and national organizations.

Secretary Michael Marchuk of the local told of his association with Cole and his program for helping to promote music among the younger generation and to play for hospitals throughout his territory covering an area that runs to the Pennsylvania border. He referred to his interest in the March of Dimes drive and urged all to attend Thursday's show at the municipal auditorium. Marchuk stressed Cole's popularity in the organization which unanimously elected him to the president's post.

Ward Presents Watch

Edward P. Ward, a charter member of Local 215, reminisced about his association with President Cole in the union and told of his untiring efforts to advance the cause of the organization while he held various offices in it. At the conclusion of his remarks he presented President Cole with a gold wrist watch from Local 215.

In accepting the watch, Cole said he cherished the gift and the memories of the days he has served the union, the membership of which has increased to 250 in comparison to 145 musicians who held cards in 1924 when he became active as an executive.

Compliments Members

President Cole, who served as secretary for 20 years, complimented his successor, Michael Marchuk for the job he is doing in increasing the vitality of the union, which enjoyed the monthly bulletins he has instituted.

Cole praised older members of Local 215 for suggestions and guidance they offered when the organization was in its infancy, mentioning Edward P. Ward, John Erne, and the late Paul Zucca and Jacob Mollott.

After the banquet dancing was enjoyed to the music of the Four Keys, James Sweeney at the piano, and entertainment was furnished by the Two Salesmen, who took the assemblage back to the old vaudeville days with delightful patter, songs and novelties.

Auto Window Pierced

Police were notified by S. Davis, 19 Snyder avenue, at 6 p. m. yesterday that the right center window of his station wagon was struck by an air rifle pellet as he was driving on Wilbur avenue near Gleenkill. The shot pierced the glass, he said.

Gray Devastation Remains

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 24 (AP)—Volcanic ash today hardened over a New Guinea wasteland — the once-fertile jungle home of thousands who may have died in weekend eruptions of 6,000-foot-high Mt. Lamington. "Horrible, gray devastation is all that remains," said one newspaper correspondent who flew over the area in which Australian officials said 3,000 persons—including 34 Europeans—were believed to have perished. Meager medical supplies and air transport facilities were mobilized to meet the pressing need of burned and maimed Papuans who staggered—shredded flesh hanging from their bones — into emergency aid stations established at the base of the "extinct" volcano.

ADVERTISING IN THE FREEMAN PAYS

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Performances of individual issues dominated the stock market today with prices generally moving slightly lower.

Trading was limited with the pace slowing down as the price level fell.

Douglas Aircraft dropped more than 5 points after directors declared an extra of $1.25 and a regular quarterly of $1.25. A similar extra was paid last Feb. 21. Disappointment over the action was evident.

Gulf Oil added more than 3 points in response to directors' action yesterday in declaring a 100 per cent stock dividend. The opening of Gulf was somewhat delayed, and it started out on a block of 3,000 shares up 2¼ at 90½.

American Telephone developed early weakness that carried it down more than a point at times. The new rights were admitted to trading on a "when issued" basis during the morning and started on a block of 150,000 at 1 24/32. Subsequent trading was around that level.

The radio-television division held to small gains as did some of the oils and distillers. Elsewhere there was a generous sprinkling of gains and losses with the accent on the downside.

Higher were Southern Pacific, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co., Johns-Manville, American Tobacco, International Paper, American Cyanamid, International Telephone, Southern California Edison, Goodyear, International Harvester, National Distillers, Admiral Corp., and Motorola.

New Groups Are Named For Parade of Bands

Additional musical groups and entertainers were announced this morning to participate in Thursday night's big Parade of Bands show at the municipal auditorium for the March of Dimes fund.

John Cole, president of Local 215, of the American Federation of Musicians, named the following groups who will join others in contributing their services for the polio campaign:

Black Swan orchestra, Frank White, vocal renditions; Clementine Nessel Trio, Phil Odell, concert pianist; Al Mackey Trio and the 40-piece Kingston Concert Band under the direction of Sal Castiglione.

Thursday's entire program from the auditorium will be broadcast over WKNY and listeners may telephone in their pledges to the March of Dimes and at the same time request their favorite songs which will be played during the four hour show from 8 to 12 o'clock midnight.

The special telephone at the auditorium to accept these calls for pledges and song requests will be 6800.

Charles Nessler Dies

Harrington Park, N. J., Jan. 24 (AP) — Charles Nessler, credited with being the originator of the permanent wave and the inventor of false eyelashes, is dead at 78. Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Nessler who died Monday of a heart attack at his home. A native of Germany, Nessler came to this country from England in 1915 and opened a beauty salon in New York city. Customers, including Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, paid $120 for a permanent wave. The price included a free lunch.

Dutch Cabinet Resigns

The Hague, Jan. 24 (AP) — The Dutch cabinet resigned today following attacks in Parliament on the government's defense and New Guinea policies. Earlier Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker quit the cabinet after members of his own Liberal Party attacked the government major policies. Stikker may be asked to head a new cabinet should Premier Willem Drees be unable to reform his Catholic-Labor coalition.

Students Blast U. S.

Rangoon (AP)—Burmese students are peeved at their government's "pro-American attitude" and said so at a public meeting. Student speakers accused Prime Minister Thakin Nu of selling out Burmese interests to "curry favor with Americans." They made it quite clear they want their country linked more firmly with the Soviet bloc whose "democratic educational system" they greatly "admired."

Musicians Honor John A. Cole at Annual Banquet

At its annual banquet Tuesday in The Barn, attended by more than 300, Protective Local 215, American Federation of Musicians, honored President John A. Cole for more than 29 years of service to the organization, crediting him with bolstering the union in many ways and establishing ideal relations between musicians and those who hire them.

Among those who paid tribute to Cole's untiring efforts and effective administration in several offices of the local was James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, who referred to him as a personal friend capably serving the cause of the union and its membership.

Petrillo expressed his sentiments in a telegram, and stressed his regret at not being able to attend the event. Other congratulatory messages were read from C. L. Bagley, Los Angeles, vice-president of the A. F. of M.; Harry J. Steeper, Newark, treasurer; Leo Cluesmann, Newark, secretary, and from members of the executive board—Herman D. Kesun, Portland, Ore., J. W. Parks, Dallas, Texas, and Stanley Ballard, Minneapolis; also Chauncey A. Weaver, Des Moins, Iowa, honorary member of the board.

Delegations were present from locals in Schenectady, Troy, Newburgh, Hudson, Saratoga Springs, Albany, Poughkeepsie, and Middletown. Nat M. Abramson, manager of WOR Entertainment Bureau, sent his congratulations, praising President Cole for his cooperation in dealing with bands he sends to Kingston for social functions in the municipal auditorium.

Judge Cashin Pays Tribute

County Judge John M. Cashin, introduced as the "magistrate who has drummed in every band in the area," lauded Cole as a union leader. Citing the progress of Local 215 under his guidance, the judge said, "You can't go wrong following John. He battles for what he knows is right and maintains unity among the ranks of the organization."

Judge Cashin referred to a situation that arose when he was corporation counsel of the city, pointing out that through the understanding and cooperation of John Cole it was eventually settled to the advantage of the musicians.

The judge, whose avocation is singing in amateur theatricals and taking a turn at the drums now and then, was presented with an honorary card in Local 215. As he handed the credentials to Judge Cashin, President Cole remarked, "From now on you play only in union bands."

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk referred to the pleasant relations he has enjoyed with President Cole and lauded the musicians union for its projects in city parks and hospitals that give pleasure to those who love music.

Charles Morris, secretary of Saratoga Local 506, and president of the New York State Conference of Musicians, stressed the attainments of the organization through the aid of John Cole, and emphasized the important parts he has played at national conventions.

Bringing greetings from the Poughkeepsie local, Fred Stitzel, business agent and secretary, formerly of Kingston, said, "This turnout is a great tribute to John A. Cole, and he justly deserves it."

Mrs. Cole was asked to stand for an introduction, and Dick McCarthy, master of ceremonies for the occasion, mentioned the important part she played in encouraging her husband to carry on with his work.

Plans Used Nationally

Attorney Irving M. Dooling, president of Albany Local 14, covered President Cole's activities in the union, emphasizing that many of the policies and plans he instituted for his own area have been adopted by the state and national organizations.

Secretary Michael Marchuk of the local told of his association with Cole and his program for helping to promote music among the younger generation and to play for hospitals throughout his territory covering an area that runs to the Pennsylvania border. He referred to his interest in the March of Dimes drive and urged all to attend Thursday's show at the municipal auditorium. Marchuk stressed Cole's popularity in the organization which unanimously elected him to the president's post.

Ward Presents Watch

Edward P. Ward, a charter member of Local 215, reminisced about his association with President Cole in the union and told of his untiring efforts to advance the cause of the organization while he held various offices in it. At the conclusion of his remarks he presented President Cole with a gold wrist watch from Local 215.

In accepting the watch, Cole said he cherished the gift and the memories of the days he has served the union, the membership of which has increased to 250 in comparison to 145 musicians who held cards in 1924 when he became active as an executive.

Compliments Members

President Cole, who served as secretary for 20 years, complimented his successor, Michael Marchuk for the job he is doing in increasing the vitality of the union, which enjoyed the monthly bulletins he has instituted.

Cole praised older members of Local 215 for suggestions and guidance they offered when the organization was in its infancy, mentioning Edward P. Ward, John Erne, and the late Paul Zucca and Jacob Mollott.

After the banquet dancing was enjoyed to the music of the Four Keys, James Sweeney at the piano, and entertainment was furnished by the Two Salesmen, who took the assemblage back to the old vaudeville days with delightful patter, songs and novelties.

Auto Window Pierced

Police were notified by S. Davis, 19 Snyder avenue, at 6 p. m. yesterday that the right center window of his station wagon was struck by an air rifle pellet as he was driving on Wilbur avenue near Greenkill. The shot pierced the glass, he said.

Gray Devastation Remains

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 24 (AP)—Volcanic ash today hardened over a New Guinea wasteland—the once-fertile jungle home of thousands who may have died in weekend eruptions of 6,000-foot-high Mt. Lamington. "Horrible, gray devastation is all that remains," said one newspaper correspondent who flew over the area in which Australian officials said 3,000 persons—including 34 Europeans—were believed to have perished. Meager medical supplies and air transport facilities were mobilized to meet the pressing need of burned and maimed Papuans who staggered—shredded flesh hanging from their bones—into emergency aid stations established at the base of the "extinct" volcano.

Tibet's ill-defined borders have given rise to many disputes.

$12,000 Verdict Awarded Davi

A verdict of $12,000 for plaintiff, Vancy Davi, in an action against Charles Mayonne was returned Tuesday afternoon in Supreme Court. Davi, a passenger in the Mayonne car, sued for injuries received in an accident on Route 9-W near Saugerties. N. LeVan Haver appeared for plaintiff and Cook & Cook for defendant.

An action for personal injuries brought by John D. Scarzello, as guardian etc., against Louis L. Shook and another, was announced settled. John N. Embler for plaintiff and Robinson, Hennessy and Gale and N. LeVan Haver for defendants.

Justice Kenneth MacAffer excused jurors until Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock to which time court recessed.

Kellem Case Before Jury

New Haven, Jan. 24 (AP)—Vivien Kellems' withholding tax case against the government and John W. Fitzpatrick, collector of internal revenue for Connecticut, went to the jury in federal court at 11:41 a. m. today. Judge Carroll C. Hincks gave the case to the jury of seven women and five men after a 25-minute charge in which he defined the word "wilfull."
